Killebrew, 2014 This Handbook offers an overview of the archaeology of the Levant Written by leading scholars in the field it integrates the treatment of the archaeology of the region within its larger cultural and social context and focuses chronologically on the Neolithic through to the Persian periods European Prehistory Sarunas Milisauskas, 2011-08-04 European Prehistory A Survey traces humans from their earliest appearance on the continent to the Rise of the Roman Empire drawing on archaeological research from all over Europe It includes the Paleolithic Mesolithic Neolithic Bronze and Iron Ages Throughout these periods the major developments are explored using a wide range of archaeological data that emphasizes aspects of agricultural practices gender mortuary practices population genetics ritual settlement patterns technology trade and warfare Using new methods and theories recent discoveries and arguments are presented and previous discoveries reevaluated This work includes chapters on European geography and the chronology of European prehistory A new chapter has been added on the historical development of European archaeology The remaining chapters have been contributed by archaeologists specializing in different periods The second edition of European Prehistory A Survey is enhanced by a glossary three indices and a comprehensive bibliography as well as an extensive collection of maps chronological tables and photographs Down the Bright Stream: The Prehistory of Woodcock Corner and the Tregurra Valley, Cornwall Sean R. Taylor, 2022-06-23 This volume reports on a series of fieldwork projects carried out in the Tregurra Valley to the east of Truro Cornwall between 2009-2015 The fieldwork led to the identification of a large number of pits and hearths across the site the majority of which that have proved dateable spanning the Early Neolithic to the end of the Early Bronze Age Living with the Flood Samantha Paul, Kevin Colls, Henry Chapman, 2015-11-30 The site at Mill Lane Sawston represents millennia of human activity within a dynamic and changing landscape setting River valleys have been a focus for human activity since the early Holocene and in addition to providing abundant archaeological evidence for this activity the proximity to water also highlights the potential for the preservation of both archaeological remains and palaeoenvironmental source material However human activity within river valleys also commonly bridges areas of both wetland and dryland ecological zones which are often approached using quite different archaeological methods and which present considerable differences in levels of archaeological visibility and preservation The site at Mill Lane offered an uncommon opportunity to explore the interface between these two types of environment Here we present the results of the study of a wetland dryland interface on the edge of palaeochannels of the River Cam in Cambridgeshire Through the integrated archaeological and palaeoenvironmental analysis of a site on the western edge of Sawston a detailed picture of life on the edge of the floodplain from the late glacial to the post medieval periods has been developed At the heart of this is the relationship between people and their changing

environment which reveals a shifting pattern of ritual occupation and more transitory activity as the riparian landscape in a wooded setting became a wetland within a more openly grazed environment The presence of potential built structures dating to the early Neolithic the early Bronze Age and the early Anglo Saxon periods provides some sense of continuity although the nature of these structures and the environmental context within which they were constructed was very different The site at Mill Lane Sawston represents millennia of human activity within a dynamic and changing landscape setting River valleys have been a focus for human activity since the early Holocene and in addition to providing abundant archaeological evidence for this activity the proximity to water also highlights the potential for the preservation of both archaeological remains and palaeoenvironmental source material However human activity within river valleys also commonly bridges areas of both wetland and dryland ecological zones which are often approached using quite different archaeological methods and which present considerable differences in levels of archaeological visibility and preservation The site at Mill Lane offered an uncommon opportunity to explore the interface between these two types of environment Here we present the results of the study of a wetland dryland interface on the edge of palaeochannels of the River Cam in Cambridgeshire Through the integrated archaeological and palaeoenvironmental analysis of a site on the western edge of Sawston a detailed picture of life on the edge of the floodplain from the late glacial to the post medieval periods has been developed At the heart of this is the relationship between people and their changing environment which reveals a shifting pattern of ritual occupation and more transitory activity as the riparian landscape in a wooded setting became a wetland within a more openly grazed environment The presence of potential built structures dating to the early Neolithic the early Bronze Age and the early Anglo Saxon periods provides some sense of continuity although the nature of these structures and the environmental context within which they were constructed was very different The site at Mill Lane Sawston represents millennia of human activity within a dynamic and changing landscape setting River valleys have been a focus for human activity since the early Holocene and in addition to providing abundant archaeological evidence for this activity the proximity to water also highlights the potential for the preservation of both archaeological remains and palaeoenvironmental source material However human activity within river valleys also commonly bridges areas of both wetland and dryland ecological zones which are often approached using quite different archaeological methods and which present considerable differences in levels of archaeological visibility and preservation The site at Mill Lane offered an uncommon opportunity to explore the interface between these two types of environment Here we present the results of the study of a wetland dryland interface on the edge of palaeochannels of the River Cam in Cambridgeshire Through the integrated archaeological and palaeoenvironmental analysis of a site on the western edge of Sawston a detailed picture of life on the edge of the floodplain from the late glacial to the post medieval periods has been developed At the heart of this is the relationship between people and their changing environment which reveals a shifting pattern of ritual occupation and more transitory activity as the riparian landscape in a wooded setting

Postcolonial Justice Anke Bartels,Lars Eckstein,Nicole Waller,Dirk Wiemann,2017-02-13 Postcolonial Justice addresses a major issue in current postcolonial theory and beyond namely the question of how to reconcile an ethics grounded in the reciprocal acknowledgment of diversity and difference with the normative if not universal thrust that appears to energize any notion of justice The concept of postcolonial justice shared by the essays in this volume carries an unwavering commitment to difference within and beyond Europe while equally rejecting radical cultural essentialisms which refuse to engage in utopian ideals of convivial exchange across a plurality of subject positions Such utopian ideals can no longer claim universal validity as in the tradition of the European enlightenment instead they are bound to local frames of speaking from which they project world Time, Culture and Identity Julian Thomas,2002-01-31 Time Culture and Identity questions the modern western distinctions between nature and culture mind and body object and subject Drawing on the philosophy of Martin Heidegger Julian Thomas develops a way of writing about the past in which time is seen as central to the emergence of the identities of people and objects

Global Life Systems Robert P. Clark,2000 Humans did not begin as a global species we had to expand to become one And we could not have done so without other living organisms becoming global along with us Robert P Clark develops in this book a global life systems perspective that delineates how biological forces mutually reinforce one another and what their globalization has meant for both human society and the biosphere While he resists biological determinism Clark traces interconnected developments among population disease agriculture trade fuels and other life systems to more thoroughly explore and elucidate the globalization of human endeavors within an ever evolving context of nature and environment His lucid and richly documented book offers a fresh look at social evolution and a broader basis for understanding the contemporary context for global change Making Places In The Prehistoric World Joanna Bruck,Melissa Goodman,2023-04-28 First published in 1999 This groundbreaking volume addresses issues central to the study of prehistoric settlement including group memory the transmission of ideology and the impact of mobility and seasonality on the construction of social identity Building on these themes the contributors point to new ways of understanding the relationship between settlement and landscape by replacing Capitalist models of spatial relations with more intimate histories of place

The Oxford Handbook of Mesolithic Europe ,2025-01-03 Research into the Mesolithic has recently undergone important transformations making it one of the most dynamic fields of archaeological research today These changes are the result of a combination of factors new and exciting discoveries the impact of innovative scientific methods and the introduction of fresh interpretative approaches Situated within a long period defined by significant environmental demographic and social change the European Mesolithic period provides key insights to answer the big questions in archaeology including the deep history of migration diversity and adaptation It also provides resources for elucidating answers to complex questions about human relationships diet economy and identity New theoretical approaches to the Mesolithic in Europe have expanded research into new areas such as lived experience ritual cosmology art identity the body and human animal relationships These new research questions have added important nuance and provided a more complete understanding of the period With contributions from leading scholars in the field and from across the continent The Oxford Handbook of Mesolithic Europe provides the first comprehensive overview of the rich archaeology of Mesolithic Europe Chapters on different European regions as well as neighboring areas in North Africa and the Middle East provide a synoptic view with thematic chapters examining the lived experience of different kinds of landscapes and adaptations different forms of technology and aspects of Mesolithic life death ritual cosmology and art The volume highlights both the significance of interdisciplinary research for the field and the importance of combining perspectives and approaches when studying the deep past Continental Connections Hugo Anderson-Whymark,Duncan Garrow,Fraser Sturt,2015-02-26 The prehistories of Britain and Ireland are inescapably entwined with continental European narratives The central aim here is to explore cross channel relationships throughout later prehistory investigating the archaeological links material social cultural between the areas we now call Britain and Ireland and continental Europe from the Mesolithic through to the end of the Iron Age Since the separation from the European mainland of Ireland c 16 000 BC and Britain c 6000 BC their island nature has been seen as central to many aspects of life within them helping to define their senses of identity and forming a crucial part of their neighbourly relationship with continental Europe and with each other However it is important to remember that the surrounding seaways have often served to connect as well as to separate these islands from the continent In approaching the subject of continental connections in the long term and by bringing a variety of different archaeological perspectives associated with different periods to bear on it this volume provides a new a new synthesis of the ebbs and flows of the cross channel relationship over the course of 15 000 years of later prehistory enabling fresh understandings and new insights to emerge about the intimately linked trajectories of change in both regions The Archaeology of Plural and Changing Identities Eleanor Casella,Chris

Fowler,2005-12-05 As people move through life they continually shift affiliation from one position to another dependent on the wider contexts of their interactions Different forms of material culture may be employed as affiliations shift and the connotations of any given set of artifacts may change In this volume the authors explore these overlapping spheres of social affiliation Social actors belong to multiple identity groups at any moment in their life It is possible to deploy one or many potential labels in describing the identities of such an actor Two main axes exist upon which we can plot experiences of social belonging the synchronic and the diachronic Identities can be understood as multiple during one moment or the extended moment of brief interaction over the span of a lifetime or over a specific historical trajectory From the Introduction The international contributions each illuminate how the various identifiers of race ethnicity sexuality age class gender personhood health and or religion are part of both material expressions of social affiliations and transient experiences of identity The Archaeology of Plural and Changing Identities Beyond Identification will be of great interest to archaeologists anthropologists historians curators and other social scientists interested in the mutability of identification through material remains

Europe's First Farmers T. Douglas Price,2000-09-14 Essays by leading specialists on a central issue of European history the transition to farming

Interpretative Archaeology Christopher Tilley,2020-05-26 This fascinating volume integrates recent developments in anthropological and sociological theory with a series of detailed studies of prehistoric material culture The authors explore the manner in which semiotic hermeneutic Marxist and post structuralist approaches radically alter our understanding of the past and provide a series of innovative studies of key areas of interest to archaeologists and anthropologists

Archaeology After Interpretation Benjamin Alberti,Andrew Meirion Jones,Joshua Pollard,2016-06-16 A new generation of archaeologists has thrown down a challenge to post processual theory arguing that characterizing material symbols as arbitrary overlooks the material character and significance of artifacts This volume showcases the significant departure from previous symbolic approaches that is underway in the discipline It brings together key scholars advancing a variety of cutting edge approaches each emphasizing an understanding of artifacts and materials not in terms of symbols but relationally as a set of associations that compose people s understanding of the world Authors draw on a diversity of intellectual sources and case studies paving a dynamic road ahead for archaeology as a discipline and theoretical approaches to material culture

How We Became Human Pierpaolo Antonello,Paul Gifford,2015-10-01 From his groundbreaking Violence and the Sacred and Things Hidden since the Foundation of the World Ren Girard s mimetic theory is presented as elucidating the origins of culture He posits that archaic religion or the sacred particularly in its dynamics of sacrifice and ritual is a neglected and major key to unlocking the enigma of how we became human French philosopher of science Michel Serres states that Girard s theory provides a Darwinian theory of culture because it proposes a dynamic shows an evolution and gives a universal explanation This major claim has however remained underscrutinized by scholars working on Girard s theory and it is mostly overlooked within the natural and social sciences Joining disciplinary worlds this book aims to explore this ambitious claim invoking viewpoints as diverse as evolutionary culture theory cultural anthropology archaeology cognitive psychology ethology and philosophy The contributors provide major evidence in favor of Girard's hypothesis Equally Girard's theory is presented as having the potential to become for the human and social sciences something akin to the integrating framework that present day biological science owes to Darwin something compatible with it and complementary to it in accounting for the still remarkably little understood phenomenon of human emergence

The Archaeology of Britain John Hunter, Ian Ralston, 1999 A comprehensive and up to date introduction to all the archaeological periods covering Britain from early prehistory to the industrial revolution It provides a one stop textbook for the entire archaeology of Britain

Economic Zooarchaeology Peter Rowley-Conwy, Dale Serjeantson, Paul Halstead, 2017-05-31

Economic archaeology is the study of how past peoples exploited animals and plants using as evidence the remains of those animals and plants The animal side is usually termed zooarchaeology the plant side archaeobotany What distinguishes them from other studies of ancient animals and plants is that their ultimate aim is to find out about human behaviour the animal and plant remains are a means to this end The 33 papers present a wide array of topics covering many areas of archaeological interest Aspects of method and theory animal bone identification human palaeopathology prehistoric animal utilisation in South America and the study of dog cemeteries are covered The long running controversy over the milking of animals and the use of dairy products by humans is discussed as is the ecological impact of hunting by farmers with studies from Serbia and Syria For Britain coverage extends from Mesolithic Star Carr via the origins of agriculture and the farmers of Lismore Fields through considerations of the Neolithic and Bronze Age Outside Britain papers discuss Neolithic subsistence in Cyprus and Croatia Iron Age society in Spain Medieval and post medieval animal utilisation in northern Russia and the claimed finding of a modern red deer skeleton in Egypt's Eastern Desert In exploring these themes this volume celebrates the life and work of Tony Legge zoo archaeologist and teacher

Contested Landscapes Barbara Bender, Margot Winer, 2020-05-27 Landscapes are not just backdrops to human action people make them and are made by them How people understand and engage with their material world depends upon particularities of time and place These understandings are dynamic variable contradictory and open ended Landscapes are thus always evolving and are often volatile and contested They are also always on the move people may or may not be rooted but they have legs From prehistoric times onwards people have travelled but the process of people on the move as tourists or on global business as migrant workers or political or economic refugees has vastly accelerated How and why do people who share the same landscape have different and often violently opposed ways of understanding its significance How do people on the move make sense of the unfamiliar How do they create a sense of place How do they rework the memories of places left behind There is nothing easeful about the landscapes discussed in this book which are often harsh edged and troubled both socially and politically The contributors tackle contested notions of landscape to explain the key role it plays in creating identity and shaping human behaviour This landmark study offers an important contribution towards an understanding of the complexity of landscape
