Rethinking The State In The Age Of Globalisation:

Rethinking the State in the Age of Globalisation Heinz-Gerhard Justenhoven, 2003 Since Jean Bodin and Thomas Hobbes political theorists have depicted the state as sovereign because it holds preeminent authority over all the denizens belonging to its geographically defined territory From the Peace of Westphalia in 1648 until the beginning of World War I in 1914 the essential responsibilities ascribed to the sovereign state were maintaining internal and external security and promoting domestic prosperity This idea of the state in political theory is clearly inadequate to the realities of national governments and international relations at the beginning of the twenty first century During the twentieth century the sovereign state as a reality and an idea has been variously challenged from without and within its borders Where will the state head in the age of globalisation Can Catholic political thinking contribute to an adequate concept of statehood and government A group of German and American scholars were asked to explore specific ways in which the intellectual traditions of Catholicism might help our effort to rethink the state The debate is guided by the conviction that these intellectual resources will prove valuable to political theorists as they work to revise our understanding of the state

Trust and Social Transformation Heiko Schrader, 2004 Literature on trust has experienced a continuous growth from the 1970s onward The focus of sociological and political science theories is not so much on what trust is rather than what trust does its function where it comes from its origin and how it changes in course of time Books on transformation in Eastern Europe however are mainly related to questions of system transfer and institutional change rather than interpersonal relations within society that can constitute both an opportunity for and an obstacle to social transformation With this book German and Russian scholars intend to fill this gap This collection includes theoretical papers articles that link topics of trust and empirical historical observations and empirical research on trust and transformation the Age of Globalisation Edward Shizha, Lamine Diallo, 2016-03-09 This is a collection of bold and visionary scholarship that reveals an insightful exposition of re-visioning African development from African perspectives. It provides educators, policy makers, social workers, non-governmental agencies and development agencies with an interdisciplinary conceptual base that can effectively guide them in planning and implementing programs for socio-economic development in Africa. The book provides up-to-date scholarly research on continental trends on various subjects and concerns of paramount importance to globalisation and development in Africa: politics, democracy, education, gender, technology, global relationships and the role of non-governmental organisations. The authors challenge the familiar paradigms in order to show how imperfectly if at all assumptions about globalisation and development theories have failed in their depictions and applications to Africa. The scholars in this volume both inform and advocate for a re-visioning of perceptions on Africa and how it navigates global processes.

People and State in Socialist Cuba Marina Gold, 2016-04-29 This book is a political and anthropological analysis of the concept of Revolution as it is understood and experienced by Cubans in their daily lives. Urban agricultural movements, alternative medicine, self-employment and migration reveal complex interactions and disrupt assumptions that the Cuban state is a static anachronistic regime.

Education, Globalization and the State in the Age of Terrorism Michael A. Peters, 2015-12-03 Education plays an important role in challenging, combating and in understanding terrorism in its different forms, whether as counter-terrorism or as a form of human rights education. Just as education has played a significant role in the process of nation building, so education also plays a strong role in the process of empire, globalization and resistance to global forces and in terrorism, especially where it is linked to emergent statehood. This book focuses on the theme of education in an age of terrorism, exploring the conflicts of globalization and global citizenship, feminism post 9/11, youth identities, citizenship and democracy in a culture of permanent war and the relation between education and war with a focus on the war against Iraq.

Empire in the Age of Globalisation Ray Kiely, 2005-09-20 This book examines the relationship between US hegemony and contemporary globalisation. Many introductory textbooks on globalisation tend to be simplistic and conservative. This book moves things forward, providing a critical review of the globalisation debate. Kiely reveals the weaknesses of globalisation theory and argues that we can only approach a proper understanding of the contemporary world order by linking globalisation to debates on capitalism, imperialism, neo-liberalism and universal human rights. He explores US hegemony in the light of these issues, showing how liberal internationalism cannot be separated from capitalism, neo-liberalism and US empire building.

Democratization, Development, and the Patrimonial State in the Age of Globalization Eric N. Budd, 2004-01-01 Postcolonial Third World states have historically faced two major challenges: the promotion of economic development and the creation of stable democracies. These challenges persist today in the face of globalization. While some developing former colonial countries have gotten a foothold up on globalization, others are not so fortunate. In Democratization, Development, and the Patrimonial State in the Age of Globalization, author Eric Budd investigates and compares forms of patrimonialism in several developing states. The traditional criticism of development countries leveled by liberal democracies and their constituents is that too much patrimonialism acts as a barrier in the face of economic development and democratization. The author considers this criticism through a comparative study of the Philippines, Peru, Taiwan, Chile, Ecuador, and Indonesia. Each case holds a specific relationship to patrimonialism. As a result, these cases provide the author with a unique window into the question of patrimonialism and its effect on economic development and the development of democratic societies. Democratization, Development and the Patrimonial State in the Age of Globalization offers a significant contribution to disciplinary discussions in international relations, economics, sociology, development studies, and globalization studies. An Emerging Africa in the Age of Globalisation Robert

Mudida, 2021-07-29. Since the turn of the century, Africa has been emerging economically, politically, and socially and striving to assert itself on the global stage. This book provides an interdisciplinary view of Africa's struggle to find its unique voice and contribute to the dialogue of international affairs. Highlighting both challenges and opportunities, the book explores the multi-faceted economic, political, and social debates that surround Africa's emergence in a complex, increasingly globalised world. The author provides holistic, complementary, and policy-oriented advice to African governments and policymakers on how to cope with new interrelated realities in an age of globalisation. This book will be of great interest to students, academics, and researchers in the areas of political economy, international development, global governance, public policy, and the international relations of African states. It will also appeal to African leaders, policymakers, and governments who seek to increase the ability of their countries to cope with the challenges presented by a globalised world. Transforming Police in Central and Eastern Europe Marina Caparini, 2004. The issue of police reform in countries in transition from state socialism toward more democratic forms of governance has risen to practical prominence in recent years. The collapse of the Soviet Union initiated fundamental changes in aspirations, ideologies, and governing practices among former members of the socialist camp. Reforming policing systems, which had served primarily to protect the party states from their opponents into systems which serve and protect civic society, has come to be seen as an essential prerequisite and concomitant of the democratisation process in transitional countries. The chapters in this book describe what has happened to the policing systems in 14 countries in Central and Eastern Europe: what reforms in ideology, organisation, policies, and practices have been undertaken; what has changed in the way policing is done; and assessment of whether the policing system has moved closer toward democratic policing. In combining descriptions of reforms and assessments of whether reforms have moved policing systems toward more democratic forms, the book provides a comparative overview of what has been achieved since 1989 and what has been learned so far about how to reform policing systems along democratic lines. Such lessons offer insights for further reform in transitional countries and for Western democracies as well, and we hope will stimulate more theoretical discussions of the nature and dynamics of policing systems, state-society relations, and the role of processes of democratisation of policing systems      Globalisation, State and Labour Peter Fairbrother, Al Rainnie, 2007-05-07

Globalisation State and Labour combines a new theoretical approach with comparative analysis ensuring that it will be of vital interest to anyone concerned with the globalization debate the future of the state and organized labour It shows how although the world is undergoing enormous changes involving politics the economy and society the position and place of the state and the significance of state policy in this process is heavily contested Presenting a timely opportunity to review and reassess the modern state with regards to labour the essays included in this text written by leading researchers in the area develop a new theoretical framework that puts work workers and their organizations at the heart of analyzing state restructuring Using major studies from four countries UK Denmark Australia and New Zealand the contributors challenge many preconceptions regarding globalization and labour organization including the notions that the state is being marginalized by the processes of globalization and that the trade unions are becoming irrelevant      Gender and Citizenship in the Global Age Amri, Laroussi, Ramtohul, Ramola, 2015-03-01 One of the major issues this book examines is what the African experience and identity have contributed to the debate on citizenship in the era of globalisation The volume presents case studies of different African contexts illustrating the gendered aspects of citizenship as experienced by African men and women Citizenship carries manifold gendered aspects and given the distinct gender roles and responsibilities globalisation affects citizenship in different ways It further examines new forms of citizenship emerging from the current era dominated by a neoliberal focus The book is not exclusive in terms of theorisation but its focus on African contexts with an in depth analysis taking into consideration local culture and practices and their implications for citizenship provides a good foundation for further scholarly work on gender and citizenship in Africa      Asia-Europe Cooperation After the 1997-1998 Asian

Turbulence Chyungly Lee, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2000 When the second Asia Europe meeting took place in London in April 1998 the EU's economic motivation of building strong links with Asia was challenged by the ongoing Asian economic crises that broke out in mid 1997 The political and social turmoil that ensued in many East Asian economies not only urges the re examination of the East Asian economic miracle but also reprioritizes the regional agenda and thus embarks on a new environment for Asia Europe co operation The impact of this Asian turbulence on the establishment of the long term Asia Europe equal partnership in general and the ASEM process in particular are addressed in this book based on the conclusions of the 1998 Asia Europe Co operation Forum The aim of this book is to examine the background causes responses prospects and lessons of the first wave of financial crisis in Southeast Asia and to then move on to an analysis of developments in Asia Europe co operative relations after the onset of the crisis It examines the importance of continued interregional economic co operation between ASEAN and the EU looks at the economic impact of the 1997 98 East Asian financial crisis on the EU and analyzes the economic fabric of ASEM In the final chapter the book explores how the ASEM process has furthered the development of interregionalism in world affairs and discusses how the crisis has led to uncertainty
