Documentary Aesthetics in the Long 1960s in Eastern Europe and Beyond ,2023-12-18 This book is the first to deal with documentary aesthetic practices of the post war period in Eastern Europe in a comparative perspective The contributions examine the specific forms and modes of documentary representations and the role they played in the formation of new aesthetic trends during the cultural political transition of the long 1960s This documentary first hand approach to the world aimed to break up unquestioned ideological structures and expose tabooed truths in order to engender much needed social changes New ways of depicting daily life writing testimony or subjective reportage emerged that still shape cultural debates today Re-visioning Historical Fiction for Young Readers Kim Wilson,2011-06-15 This study is concerned with how readers are positioned to interpret the past in historical fiction for children and young adults Looking at literature published within the last thirty to forty years Wilson identifies and explores a prevalent trend for re visioning and rewriting the past according to modern social and political ideological assumptions Fiction within this genre while concerned with the past at the level of content is additionally concerned with present views of that historical past because of the future to which it is moving Specific areas of discussion include the identification of a new sub genre Living history fiction stories of Joan of Arc historical fiction featuring agentic females the very popular Scholastic Press historical journal series fictions of war and historical fiction featuring multicultural discourses Wilson observes specific traits in historical fiction written for children most notably how the notion of positive progress into the future is nuanced differently in this literature in which the concept of progress from the past is inextricably linked to the protagonist s potential for agency and the realization of subjectivity The genre consistently manifests a concern with identity construction that in turn informs and influences how a metanarrative of positive progress is played out This book engages in a discussion of the functionality of the past within the genre and offers an interpretative frame for the sifting out of the present from the past in historical fiction for young readers

Translation meets this need and will be essential reading for all students of English and comparative literature. It highlights the place of translation in our culture, encouraging awareness of the issues raised, making the translator more visible. Concentrating on major writers and works, it covers translations out of many languages from Greek to Korean, from Swahili to Russian. For some works, e.g. Virgil's Aeneid, which have been much translated, the discussion is historical and critical, showing how translation has evolved over the centuries and bringing out the differences between versions. Elsewhere, with less familiar literatures, the Guide examines the extent to which translation has done justice to the range of work available. The Guide is divided into two parts. Part I contains substantial essays on theoretical questions, a pioneering outline of the history of translation into English, and discussions of the problems raised by specific types of text, e.g. poetry, oral literature. The second, much longer part consists of entries grouped by language of origin; some are devoted to individual texts, e.g. the Thousand and One Nights, or writers, e.g. Ibsen, Proust, but the majority offer a critical overview of a genre, e.g. Chinese poetry, Spanish Golden Age drama, or of a national literature, e.g. Hungarian, Scottish Gaelic. There is a selective bibliography for each entry and an index of authors and translators.

Publishing in Tsarist Russia Yukiko Tatsumi, Taro Tsurumi, 2020-02-20 According to Benedict Anderson, the rapid expansion of print media during the late 1700s popularised national history and standardised national languages, thus helping create nation states and national identities at the expense of the old empires. Publishing in Tsarist Russia challenges this theory and, by examining the history of Russian publishing through a transnational lens, reveals how the popular press played an important and complex Imperial role while providing a soft infrastructure which the subjects could access to change Imperial order. As this volume convincingly argues, this is because the Russian language at this time was a lingua franca, it crossed borders and boundaries, reaching speakers of varying nationalities. Russian publications then were able to effectively operate within the structure of Imperialism, but as a public space, they went beyond the control of the Tsar and ethnic Russians. This exciting international team of scholars provides a much needed fresh take on the history of Russian publishing and contributes significantly to our understanding of print media, language and empire from the 18th to 20th centuries. Publishing in Tsarist Russia is therefore a vital resource for scholars of Russian history, comparative nationalism and publishing studies.

The emphasis is on Judaism rather than on Jewish studies more broadly.

A Companion to Soviet Children's Literature and Film Olga Voronina, 2019-10-14 A Companion to Soviet Children

s Literature and Film offers a comprehensive and innovative analysis of Soviet literary and cinematic production for children. Its contributors contextualize and reevaluate Soviet children's books, films, and animation and explore their contemporary reappropriation by the Russian government, cultural practitioners, and educators. Celebrating the centennial of Soviet children's literature and film, the Companion reviews the rich and dramatic history of the canon. It also provides an insight into the close ties between Soviet children's culture and Avant Garde aesthetics, investigates early pedagogical experiments of the Soviet state, documents the importance of translation in children's literature of the 1920-80s, and traces the evolution of heroic, fantastic, historical, and absurdist Soviet narratives for children.
