Environmental Practice in the Human Services Bernard Neugeboren, 2013-01-11 Environmental Practice in the Human Services points to the need for the human services to return to their historic mission of environmental change. It moves beyond the more general conceptual emphasis on person in environment toward the development of an environmental practice technology based on an intervention model which prescribes specific micro and macro roles and functions. It may open the way to recapturing the conceptual breadth which characterized the first 40 years of social work as a professional and occupational entity. The ecological perspective in social work has fostered an interest in the impact of social environments on service consumers. Environmental Practice in the Human Services tries to rectify the historical imbalance in the human services that has emphasized people changing methods giving secondary emphasis to environmental change. It instructs students preparing for practice in the human services as well as agency practitioners in the knowledge and skills necessary in environmental practice. Cases in environmental practice are used to illustrate how these skills are utilized in actual practice situations. The book's scope includes practice at the direct service administration, planning, and social policy levels; it integrates micro and macro practice and shows how these two levels of practice are interdependent. This enables human service practitioners to create and/or modify social environments to enhance the functioning of clients being served in human service programs. Topics covered include important skills in environmental practice including decisionmaking, negotiating, and leadership; community practice and resource coordination; social support; the impact of organizational environments on practice; environmental practice for the chronically disabled. Author Neugeboren's approach is unique in its in-depth focus on environmental practice applying concepts of social environment to specific practice roles. This practice-specific content which provides tools needed for environmental practice is in contrast to existing texts on the social environment which are very theoretical and not integrated with practice. He includes material from the field of social ecology which has not been included in existing texts. It shows how practitioners and administrators, planners, and policymakers can facilitate and support each other's work. Reading Environmental Practice in the Human Services will enlighten students and practitioners with specific skills for impacting on different social environments to enhance client benefit. It tells how a direct service practitioner can determine which organizational environments are suitable for particular client needs in making agency referrals. It also provides administrators with information about designing, planning, and managing agencies with functional organizational environments which achieve effective services.

Cancer and Self-help Mark A. Chesler, Barbara K. Chesney, 1995 Written for and about the special population of parents of children with cancer, this book explores the remarkable effectiveness of self-help groups and profiles their rapid rise as a resource complementing traditional health care. Mark A. Chesler and Barbara K. Chesney draw on their own experience as members of such groups and on a combined thirty years of research on self-help. They provide essential information for families of children with cancer and other chronic life-threatening illnesses for health care professionals working with them and for scholars of self-help and psychosocial processes.

in health care including explanations of how self help groups function why they are effective and how they can be created and maintained The authors show that through self help groups parents can learn coping skills find personal affirmation and mutual support and share the wisdom gained from their experiences Chesler and Chesney find that group participation improves parents coping capabilities in the face of terrible odds and fosters an increased sense of empowerment as they care and advocate for their children in an increasingly complex health care system Cancer and Self Help distills the experiences of more than fifty self help groups and their members over twelve years It also places cancer self help groups in a larger context comparing them to other social movement organizations and to other strategies for personal coping or change The book includes the voices of individual parents and professionals recounting their experiences detailed examples of group activities programs operating procedures and organizational structures fundamental how to information on forming a self help group comments on the roles and dilemmas of health care professionals in these groups and on the medical care system as a whole and interpretations of these individual and organizational dynamics Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2015: Related agencies FY 2015 budget justifications United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies,2014 Self-Help, Social Work and Empowerment Robert Adams,1990-04-20 A study on self help and how social workers relate to it and how they may develop integral self help It looks at how to facilitate self help and how to appraise self help Navigating Human Service Organizations Rich Furman,Margaret Gibelman,Ren Winnett,2020-07-31 Since its very inception social work has been considered an organizationally based profession with the majority of its workforce employed within formal organizations Whether in nonprofit for profit or governmental agencies the practical realities of human service organizations are a central element of professional social work This book explores the climate and culture of these agencies and provides essential information for surviving and thriving in this setting It prepares students for their future careers so that they will feel empowered in their work and be able to fulfill their responsibilities toward organizational community and social change Using real life examples the authors examine the internal structures of management financing and supervision and discuss common conflicts between agencies and professionals The book s straightforward tone and practical advice make it an asset to anyone entering human service organizations Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2016 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies,2015 Understanding Self-help/mutual Aid Thomasina Borkman,1999 Self help groups have encountered fierce criticism as places where individuals join to share personal problems and to engage in therapeutic intervention without the aid of skilled professionals These groups have flourished since the 1970s and continue to serve more people than professional therapy Yet these groups have been criticized as fostering a culture of whiners and victims and not using professional help as needed Thomasina Jo Borkman debunks this commonly held assessment and also examines the reasons for these groups enduring popularity since the 1960s more people attend these meetings word than see professional therapists What accounts for their success and popularity Understanding Self Help Mutual Aid Groups is the first book to describe three stages of individual and group evolution that is part of this organization s very structure it also reconceptualizes participants interactions with professionals The group as a whole Borkman posits draws on the life experiences of its membes to foster nurturing support and transformation through a circle of sharing Groups create more positive and less stigmatizing meaning perspectives of the members problems than is available from professionals or lay folk culture Journal of Human Services Abstracts ,1981 Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and related agencies appropriations for fiscal year 1983 United States.
