Jackson, Karen E. Alexander, Enric Sala, 2012-06-22 Shifting Baselines explores the real world implications of a groundbreaking idea we must understand the oceans of the past to protect the oceans of the future In 1995 acclaimed marine biologist Daniel Pauly coined the term shifting baselines to describe a phenomenon of lowered expectations in which each generation regards a progressively poorer natural world as normal This seminal volume expands on Pauly's work showing how skewed visions of the past have led to disastrous marine policies and why historical perspective is critical to revitalize fisheries and ecosystems Edited by marine ecologists Jeremy Jackson and Enric Sala and historian Karen Alexander the book brings together knowledge from disparate disciplines to paint a more realistic picture of past fisheries The authors use case studies on the cod fishery and the connection between sardine and anchovy populations among others to explain various methods for studying historic trends and the intricate relationships between species Subsequent chapters offer recommendations about both specific research methods and effective management This practical information is framed by inspiring essays by Carl Safina and Randy Olson on a personal experience of shifting baselines and the importance of human stories in describing this phenomenon to a broad public While each contributor brings a different expertise to bear all agree on the importance of historical perspective for effective fisheries management Readers from students to professionals will benefit enormously from this informed hindsight

Forests for People Anne M. Larson, 2010 Who has rights to forests and forest resources In recent years governments in the South have transferred at least 200 million hectares of forests to communities living in and around them This book assesses the experience of what appears to be a new international trend that has substantially increased the share of the world's forests under community administration Based on research in over 30 communities in selected countries in Asia India Nepal Philippines Laos Indonesia Africa Burkina Faso Cameroon Ghana and Latin America Bolivia Brazil Guatemala Nicaragua it examines the process and outcomes of granting new rights assessing a variety of governance issues in implementation access to forest products and markets and outcomes for people and forests Forest tenure reforms have been highly varied ranging from the titling of indigenous territories to the granting of small land areas for forest regeneration or the right to a share in timber revenues While in many cases these rights have been significant new statutory rights do not automatically result in rights in practice and a variety of institutional weaknesses and policy distortions have limited the impacts of change Through the comparison of selected cases the chapters explore the nature of forest reform the extent and meaning of rights transferred or recognized and the role of authority and citizens networks in forest governance They also assess opportunities and obstacles associated with government regulations and markets for forest products and the effects across the cases on livelihoods forest condition and equity Published with CIFOR
