some of the foremost international experts on TNWs to examine the state of the TNWs regime ten years on and explore practical options for strengthening and revamping it to more adequately address current and future arms control needs In particular the study recommends that the Russian Federation and the United States reaffirm their 1991 2 declarations regarding TNWs and work out suitable complementary monitoring and transparency measures as well as pledge not to develop any new TNWs or to resume testing and not to use or threaten to use TNWs      A Peace of Timbuktu Robin Poulton, Ibrahim ag Youssouf, United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research, 1998 This publication offers an account of the unfolding of political and civilian conflict in Mali and the efforts to contain it and an analysis of which efforts to restore peace were effective and why It also examines the role of the international community especially the United Nations in helping the Malian Government to restore peace and to reintegrate its disaffected populations and refugees back into civilian life Publisher's description      Tactical Nuclear Weapons A. Shevtsov, United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research, 2000 This study is concerned with the present and future role of tactical nuclear weapons in Europe as seen from the perspective of Ukraine It concludes that nuclear disarmament is at a crossroads and a decision has to be taken whether the aim is total disarmament or minimum deterrence on the part of a minimum number of countries Despite numerous problems there is an opportunity for increased denuclearisation in Europe within the framework of START 3 It might be based on US giving up its hedge capabilities and Russia giving up its surplus arsenal of tactical nuclear weapons      United Nations Documents Checklist , 1996-10      Costs of Disarmament Susan Willett, 2002 This study investigates the methodological challenges of analyzing the costs and benefits associated with arms control The need for such a study has arisen because the cumulative increases in the cost of treaty compliance have impeded arms control implementation and contributed to its growing marginalization In this publication the issues are examined in detail Background material on the rising costs of disarmament is provided Finally this publication looks at the averted costs of arms control namely arms racing military expenditure increases opportunity costs and the costs of war      Increasing Access to Information Technology for International Security Péricles Gasparini Alves, United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research, 1997
