Information Transfer: New Age — New Ways Suzanne Bakker, 2012-12-06 One of the characteristics of the final decade of this century is the treatment of information as a commodity As the world becomes increasingly dominated by information and its technology in all its facets librarians must learn to integrate all the new developments into daily practice It is to the extent to which we shall succeed in developing powerful information networks through efficient information transfer that we shall succeed in contributing to the betterment of health throughout our nations It is this challenge which medical librarians from some 34 countries set for themselves in convening the Third European Conference of Medical Libraries in Montpellier France in September 1992 All aspects of medical information were addressed the technical aspects of transfer ethical and legal issues costs benefits rights and responsibilities quality assurance guidance systems communications technology education and training both of information professionals and end users were discussed and debated in depth in Montpellier This volume presents an accurate account of a conference which has made a significant contribution to the development of medical librarianship in Europe and the wider world Freedom of Information and the Developing World Colin Darch, Peter G Underwood, 2009-12-14 Rather than simply summarising the state of play in African countries and elsewhere Freedom of Information and the Developing World identifies and makes explicit the assumptions about the citizen s relationship to the state that lie beneath Freedom of Information FoI discourse The book goes on to test them against the reality of the pervasive politics of patronage that characterise much of African practice Develops a discourse about the concept of FoI Discussion of the human rights claim appropriates the concepts of Hohfeldian analysis for more radical purposes in support of the idea that the state has a duty to implement FoI practices

Soft Systems Analysis and the Management of Libraries, Information Services and Resource Centres Peter G. Underwood,1996 Soft systems techniques can be used by managers at all levels to analyse the needs of individuals or groups of people working in or affected by what goes on in an organization The technique has developed as an alternative to more reductionist hard approaches which tend not to take account of the social and political dimensions of issues and have led to the implementation of systems that have failed to meet the needs of users In this introduction to the soft systems approach Professor Underwood suggests ways in which this type of analysis offers advantages when used in the context of libraries information services and resource centres Soft systems take into account the subjective element in problem solving and are of especial value in the new Internet driven information situation where traditional information boundaries are being challenged At a time when the information world has been undergoing fundamental technological and social changes the need to find techniques to promote greater understanding of this change has become an important challenge for information managers Soft systems analysis offers the practitioner the consultant and the student an in depth view of the application of soft systems analysis as a tool for exploring the potential for change in organizations

Issues of Human Computer Interaction Anabela Sarmiento,2005-01-01 Human Computer Interaction HCI has its roots in the main areas of industrial engineering human factors and cognitive psychology with the focus on the development of user friendly IT Traditionally the research in this area has emphasised the technological aspect of this relationship the Computer More recently other aspects concerning the organizational social and human context also began to be considered the Human Today one can say that any attempt to facilitate the relationship between the machine and the user must consider not only the technological perspective e g promote the usability but also for instance the way the user is going to use the technology and his or her purpose as well as the social and cultural context of this use the Human and the Computer
