Managing Big Business:

Management of Large Business Corporation Tax Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Committee of Public Accounts, 2008 In 2006 07 Her Majesty's Revenue Customs the Department raised a total of 23.8 billion in Corporation Tax from large businesses There are some 700 of these businesses and in 2005 06 just 50 of them paid 67 per cent of the large business Corporation Tax whilst 181 businesses paid none Two thirds of the tax comes from the banking oil and gas and insurance sectors Businesses pay little or no Corporation Tax because for example they have made a loss or had losses in previous years or they are using tax reliefs or engaging in tax avoidance In 2006 07 the Department's large business Corporation Tax enquiry programme raised nearly 2.7 billion Many of these enquiries were poorly targeted with nearly 60 per cent producing less than 1 per cent of the additional tax raised The enquiries also take too long in January 2008 42 per cent of its enquiries were over two years old and 10 per cent over four years old In February 2007 based on initial review of tax returns from the previous 12 months the Department estimated that the potential Corporation Tax at risk was 8.5 billion The tax assessments are very complicated and there has been a widening gap between the skill set of large business tax staff and that of the Large Business Service The Department is bringing in external recruits including retired tax advisors to help to train its staff and to deal with the more complicated technical work The Dynamics of Big Business Veronica
