Pribram,Joseph S. King,2013-06-17 A year before his death B F Skinner wrote that There are two unavoidable gaps in any behavioral account one between the stimulating action of the environment and the response of the organism and one between consequences and the resulting change in behavior Only brain science can fill those gaps In doing so it completes the account it does not give a different account of the same thing This declaration ended the epoch of radical behaviorism to the extent that it was based on the doctrine of the empty organism the doctrine that a behavioral science must be constructed purely on its own level of investigation However Skinner was not completely correct in his assessment Brain science on its own can no more fill the gaps than can single level behavioral science It is the relation between data and formulations developed in the brain and the behavioral sciences that is needed This volume is the result of The Fourth Appalachian Conference on Behavioral Neurodynamics the first three of which were aimed at filling Skinner s first gap Taking the series in a new direction the aim of the fourth and subsequent conferences is to explore the second of the gaps in the behavioral account noted by Skinner The aim of this conference was to explore the aphorism The motivation for learning is self organization In keeping with this aim and in the spirit of previous events this conference s mission was to acquaint scientists working in one discipline with the work going on in other disciplines that is relevant to both As a result it brought together those who are making advances on the behavioral level mainly working in the tradition of operant conditioning and those working with brains mainly amygdala hippocampus and far frontal cortex Societies of Brains Walter J. Freeman,2014-03-05 This monograph from a leading neuroscientist and neural networks researcher investigates and offers a fresh approach to the perplexing scientific and philosophical problems of minds and brains It explains how brains have evolved from our earliest vertebrate ancestors It details how brains provide the basis for successful comprehension of the environment for the formulation of actions and prediction of their consequences and for cooperating or competing with other beings that have brains The book also offers observations regarding such issues as how and why people fall in and out of love the biological basis for experiencing feelings of love and hate and how music and dance have provided the ancestral technology for forming social groups such as tribes and clans The author reviews the history of the mind brain problem and demonstrates how the new sciences of behavioral electrophysiology and nonlinear dynamics combined with the latest computer technology have made it possible for us to observe brains in action He also provides an answer to the question What happens to a stimulus after it enters the brain The answer The stimulus triggers the construction of a percept and is then washed away All that we know is what our brains construct for us by neurodynamics Brains are not logical devices that process information They are dynamical systems that create meaning through interactions with the environment and each other The book shows how the learning process by which brains construct meaning tends to isolate brains into self centered worlds and how nature has provided a remedy first appearing in mammals as a mechanism for pair bonding to ensure reproduction of the young dependent on parents The remedy is based in the neurochemistry of sex which serves to dissolve belief structures in order to open the way for new patterns of understanding and behavior Individuals experience these changes in various ways such as falling in love collegiate indoctrination tribal bonding brain washing political or religious conversions and related types of socialization The highest forms of meaning for humans come through these social attachments
