Man Land Myth In North Australia The Gunwinggu People:

Man, Land and Myth in North Australia Ronald Murray Berndt, Catherine Helen Berndt, 1980      Man, Land & Myth in North Australia Ronald Murray Berndt, Catherine Helen Berndt, 1970      Aboriginal Men of High Degree A. P. Elkin, 1993-11 One of Australia's most eminent anthropologists details the secret and sacred practices of Australian Aboriginal shamans documenting a rapidly vanishing indigenous culture      Oral Traditions of Southeast Asia and Oceania Herman C. Kemp, 2004      Aboriginal Peoples and Birds in Australia Philip A. Clarke, 2023-04-03 Australia is home to many distinctive species of birds and Aboriginal peoples have developed close alliances with them over the millennia of their custodianship of this country Aboriginal Peoples and Birds in Australia Historical and Cultural Relationships provides a review of the broad physical historical and cultural relationships that Aboriginal people have had with the Australian avifauna This book aims to raise awareness of the alternative bodies of ornithological knowledge that reside outside of Western science It describes the role of birds as totemic ancestors and spirit beings and explores Aboriginal bird nomenclature foraging techniques and the use of avian materials to make food medicine and artefacts Through a historical perspective this book examines the gaps between knowledge systems of Indigenous peoples and Western science to encourage greater collaboration and acknowledgment in the future Cultural sensitivity Readers are warned that there may be words descriptions and terms used in this book that are culturally sensitive and which might not normally be used in certain public or community contexts While this information may not reflect current understanding it is provided by the author in a historical context This publication may also contain quotations terms and annotations that reflect the historical attitude of the original author or that of the period in which the item was written and may be considered inappropriate today Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples are advised that this publication may contain the names and images of people who have passed away      Indigenous Multilingualism at Warruwi Ruth Singer, 2023-02-22 This book is an exploration of the role of language at Warruwi Community a remote Indigenous settlement in northern Australia It explores how language use and people's ideas about language are embedded in contemporary Indigenous life there Using an ethnographic approach the book examines what language at Warruwi means in the context of the history of the community ongoing social and political changes and the continuing importance of ancestral traditions Children growing up at Warruwi still learn to speak many small Indigenous languages This is remarkable not just in the Australian context where many Indigenous languages are no longer spoken but around the world as this kind of multilingualism in small languages persists only in a few remaining pockets The way that people use many languages in their daily life at Warruwi reveals how high levels of linguistic diversity can be maintained in a small community This detailed study of the creation of linguistic diversity is relevant to sociolinguistics linguistic typology historical linguistics and evolutionary linguistics More generally this book is for linguists anthropologists and anyone with an interest in contemporary Australian Indigenous lives      Farmers or Hunter-gatherers?

Peter Sutton, Keryn Walshe, 2021-06-16 Australians understanding of Aboriginal society prior to the British invasion from 1788 has been transformed since the publication of Bruce Pascoe's Dark Emu in 2014. It argued that classical Aboriginal society was more sophisticated than Australians had been led to believe because it resembled more closely the farming communities of Europe. In Farmers or Hunter gatherers Peter Sutton and Keryn Walshe ask why Australians have been so receptive to the notion that farming represents an advance from hunting and gathering. Drawing on the knowledge of Aboriginal elders previously not included within this discussion and decades of anthropological scholarship Sutton and Walshe provide extensive evidence to support their argument that classical Aboriginal society was a hunter gatherer society and as sophisticated as the traditional European farming methods. Farmers or Hunter gatherers asks Australians to develop a deeper understanding and appreciation of Aboriginal society and culture.

A Cautious Silence Geoffrey G. Gray, 2007 This is the first exploration of modern Australian social anthropology which examines the forces that helped shape its formation. In his new work Geoffrey Gray reveals the struggle to establish and consolidate anthropology in Australia as an academic discipline. He argues that to do so anthropologists had to demonstrate that their discipline was the predominant interpreter of Indigenous life. Thus they were able and called on to assist government in the control, development and advancement of Indigenous peoples. Gray aims to help us understand the present organisational structures and assist in the formulation of anthropology's future role in Australia to provide a wider political and social context for Australian social anthropology and to consider the importance of anthropology as a past definer of Indigenous people. Gray's work complements and adds to earlier publications Wolfe's Settler Colonialism and the Transformation of Anthropology, McGregor's Imagined Destinies and Anderson's Cultivating Whiteness.

Mortality, Mourning and Mortuary Practices in Indigenous Australia Myrna Tonkinson, Victoria Burbank, 2017-03-02 Drawing on ethnography of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities across Australia Mortality, Mourning and Mortuary Practices in Indigenous Australia focuses on the current ways in which indigenous people confront and manage various aspects of death. The contributors employ their contemporary and long term anthropological fieldwork with indigenous Australians to construct rich accounts of indigenous practices and beliefs and to engage with questions relating to the frequent experience of death within the context of unprecedented change and premature mortality. The volume makes use of extensive empirical material to address questions of inequality with specific reference to mortality thus contributing to the anthropology of indigenous Australia whilst attending to its theoretical, methodological and political concerns. As such it will appeal not only to anthropologists but also to those interested in social inequality, the social and psychosocial consequences of death and the conceptualization and manipulation of the relationships between the living and the dead.

Fighters and Singers Isobel White, Diane Barwick, Betty Meehan, 2020-07-31 The literature on Australian Aborigines is vast but much of it is strangely silent about the experiences and activities of women. This collection of stories of the eventful lives and strong characters of a number of Aboriginal women offers a more intimate and personal view Their lives span a century of history in fifteen communities scattered from Cape York Peninsula Arnhem Land and East Kimberley to the Western Desert the Centre South Australia Victoria and New South Wales One of these stories is an autobiography and each of the others contains transcriptions or translations of a woman's own reminiscences with additional details given by the author Some women recall the first time they saw a European in their land others tell how Europeans had influenced their communities generations before they were born While the authors lived in Aboriginal communities in order to study some particular aspect of the society the women they describe here became their close friends companions and helpers and this book is a record of friendships formed against differences of background experiences and age Allegiance to family and familiar territory shapes the personal histories of Aborigines in ways scarcely appreciated by people reared in nuclear family households in cities The strength of family and community ties can be better understood through reading about the women who contribute so much to the maintenance of these communities

Making Sense of History Geoffrey Partington, 2013-07-20 Much more is known about the past that is interesting valuable and relevant to our problems than any one of us can ever know Making Sense of History proposes we focus on Five Zones of Priority Livelihoods Protection from violence Freedom Relationships and Ideas Partington examines some perennial problems such as Progress or Regression Bias Prejudice and Moral Judgment Depth versus Breadth and the ongoing fabrication of myths and accusations of genocide and cannibalism Partington warns against looking to history for the certainties that physics or mathematics provide We have free will and make decisions rather than react uniformly to external forces Historical understanding is more like proverbial wisdom writ large than the theorems of Pythagoras or Einstein A more serious problem is the ideological capture of much history teaching in countries like Britain the United States Canada Australia and New Zealand Partington does not advocate vainglorious national pride but defends the achievement of those countries in making a better though imperfect balance between freedom and security than has been made at almost every other time or place

Kinship and Culture Francis L.K. Hsu, 2017-07-12 At one time Francis L K Hsu put forth a hypothesis on kinship that proposed a functional relationship between particular kinship systems and behavior patterns in particular cultural contexts The controversy provoked among cultural anthropologists by this hypothesis is reflected in this book which points the way toward more fruitful investigations of kinship in cultural and psychological anthropology Hsu's hypothesis offers an alternative to the study of kinship as a mathematical game and to the treatment of fragmentary aspects of child rearing practices as major causal factors in culture Considering the kinship system as the psychological factory of culture Hsu's aim is to discover the crucial forces in each system that shape the interpersonal orientation of the individual which forms the individual's basis for adequate functioning as a member of his society and which in turn provides his culture with a basis for continuity and change His central hypothesis is that the attributes of the dominant dyads in a given kinship system such as father son or mother daughter tend to determine the attitudes and action patterns that the individual in such a system develops toward other relationships in that system as well as toward his relationships outside of it The topics are varied ranging from the link between dyadic dominance and household maintenance to role dilemmas and father son dominance to sex role identity and dominant kinship relationships The editor has contributed an introduction an original essay on kinship and patterns of social cohesion and a summary chapter to bring coherence to the diversity of opinion stated This new presentation of Hsu s hypothesis together with its discussion by eminent anthropologists and its recommendations for future research in the area is an important addition to the literature on kinship

Representations of God Hans Kippenberg,2023-09-25 Strings of Connectedness P.G. Toner,2015-09-18 For nearly four decades Ian Keen has been an important challenging and engaging presence in Australian anthropology Beginning with his PhD research in the mid 1970s and through to the present he has been a leading scholar of Yolngu society and culture and has made lasting contributions to a range of debates His scholarly productivity however has never been limited to the Yolngu and he has conducted research and published widely on many other facets of Australian Aboriginal society on Aboriginal culture in settled Australia comparative historical work on Aboriginal societies at the threshold of colonisation a continuing interest in kinship ongoing writing on language and society and a set of significant land claims across the continent In this volume of essays in his honour a group of Keen s former students and current colleagues celebrate the diversity of his scholarly interests and his inspiring influence as a mentor and a friend with contributions ranging across language structure meaning and use the post colonial engagement of Aboriginal Australians with the ideas and structures of mainstream society ambiguity and indeterminacy in Aboriginal symbolic systems and ritual practices and many other interconnected themes each of which represents a string that he has woven into the rich tapestry of his scholarly work

Skin, Kin and Clan Patrick McConvell,Piers Kelly,Sébastien Lacrampe,2018-04-01 Australia is unique in the world for its diverse and interlocking systems of Indigenous social organisation On no other continent do we see such an array of complex and contrasting social arrangements coordinated through a principle of universal kinship whereby two strangers meeting for the first time can recognise one another as kin For some time Australian kinship studies suffered from poor theorisation and insufficient aggregation of data The large scale AustKin project sought to redress these problems through the careful compilation of kinship information Arising from the project this book presents recent original research by a range of authors in the field on the kinship and social category systems in Australia A number of the contributions focus on reconstructing how these systems originated and developed over time Others are concerned with the relationship between kinship and land the semantics of kin terms and the dynamics of kin interactions

Going it Alone? Robert Tonkinson,Michael C. Howard,1990 Examines the relationship between the government policies of self management and the real experience in Aboriginal communities Takes Aboriginal autonomy as its central theme Includes biographical sketch selected bibliography of anthropologists the Berndts diversity in understanding the modern world the emerging science of cognitive psychology has relied far more on experimental psychology neurobiology and computer science than on cultural anthropology for its models of how we think In this exciting new book anthropologist Bradd Shore has created the first study linking multi culturalism to cognitive psychology exploring the complex relationship between culture in public institutions and in mental representations In so doing he answers in a completely new way the age old question of whether humans are basically the same psychologically independent of cultures or basically diverse because of cultural differences The first half of the book emphasizes cultural models from Australian Aboriginal rituals and Samoan comedy skits to more familiar terrain including a study of baseball as a cultural model for Americans Along the way the author sheds new and novel light on many familiar institutions from educational curricula and shopping malls to modular furniture and cyberpunk fiction These observations are then linked to theoretical developments in linguistics semiotics and neuroscience creating a bold new approach to understanding the role of culture in everyday meaning making The author argues that culture must be considered an intrinsic component of the human mind to a degree that most psychologists and even many anthropologists have not recognized This new position of cultural models will make absorbing reading for psychologists anthropologists linguists and philosophers and to anyone interested in the issues of cultural diversity multiculturalism or cognitive science in general understanding of the strong relationships between geography ecology culture and architecture      Exploring the Legacy of the 1948 Arnhem Land Expedition Martin Thomas, Margo Neale, 2011-06-01 In 1948 a collection of scientists anthropologists and photographers journeyed to northern Australia for a seven month tour of research and discovery now regarded as the last of the big expeditions The American Australian Scientific Expedition to Arnhem Land was front page news at the time but 60 years later it is virtually unknown This lapse into obscurity was due partly to the fraught politics of Australian anthropology and animus towards its leader the Adelaide based writer photographer Charles Mountford Promoted as a friendly mission that would foster good relations between Australia and its most powerful wartime ally the Expedition was sponsored by National Geographic the Smithsonian Institution and the Australian Government An unlikely cocktail of science diplomacy and popular geography the Arnhem Land Expedition put the Aboriginal cultures of the vast Arnhem Land reserve on an international stage Publisher's website

Reclaiming Indigenous Governance William Nikolakis, Stephen Cornell, Harry W. Nelson, 2019-10-22 Reclaiming Indigenous Governance examines the efforts of Indigenous peoples in four important countries to reclaim their right to self govern Showcasing Native nations this timely book presents diverse perspectives of both practitioners and researchers involved in Indigenous governance in Canada Australia New Zealand and the United States the CANZUS states Indigenous governance is dynamic an ongoing relationship between Indigenous peoples and settler states The relationship may be vigorously contested but it is often fragile one that ebbs and flows where hard won gains can be swiftly lost by the policy reversals of central governments The legacy of colonial relationships continues to limit advances in self government Yet Indigenous peoples in the CANZUS countries are no strangers to setbacks and their growing movement provides ample evidence of resilience resourcefulness and determination to take back control of their own destiny Demonstrating the struggles and achievements of Indigenous peoples the chapter authors draw on the wisdom of Indigenous leaders and others involved in rebuilding institutions for governance strategic issues and managing lands and resources This volume brings together the experiences reflections and insights of practitioners confronting the challenges of governing as well as researchers seeking to learn what Indigenous governing involves in these contexts Three things emerge the enormity of the Indigenous governance task the creative agency of Indigenous peoples determined to pursue their own objectives and the diverse paths they choose to reach their goal
