Middle English Paul Strohm, 2007-04-19 These original essays mean to provoke rather than reassure to challenge rather than codify Instead of summarizing existing knowledge after the fashion of the now ubiquitous literary companions these essays aim at opening fresh discussion instead of emphasizing settled consensus they direct their readers to areas of enlivened and unresolved debate Although major authors such as Chaucer and Langland are richly represented many little known and neglected texts are considered as well Analysis is devoted not only to self sufficient works but to the general conditions of textual production and reception Contributors to this collection include some recognized and admired names but also a good many newer faces younger scholars whose groundbreaking research is just coming into full view and whose perspectives will influence the terms of literary discussion in the decades to come Encouraged to speculate they have addressed topics that unsettle previous categories of investigation Each is oriented toward the emergent the unfinalized the yet to be done Each essay stirs new questions and concludes with suggestions for further reading and investigation that will allow readers to extend their own research into the questions it has raised

Emotion in Old Norse Literature Sif Ríkharðsdóttir, 2017 Draws on Old Norse literary heritage to explore questions of emotion as both a literary motif and as a social phenomenon Authors throughout history have relied on the emotional make up of their readers and audiences to make sense of the behaviours and actions of fictive characters But how can a narrative voice contained in a text evoke feelings that are ultimately never real or actual but a figment of a text a fictive reality created out of words How does one reconcile interiority a presumed modern conceptualisation with medieval emotionality The volume seeks to address these questions It positions itself within the larger context of the history of emotion offering a novel approach to the study of literary representations of emotionality and its staging through voice performativity and narrative manipulation probing how emotions are encoded in texts The author argues that the deceptively laconic portrayal of emotion in the Icelandic sagas and other literature reveals an emotive script that favours reticence over expressivity and exposes a narrative convention of emotional subterfuge through narrative silences and the masking of emotion Focusing on the ambivalent borders between prose and poetic language she suggests that poetic vocalisation may provide a literary space within which emotive interiority can be expressed The volume considers a wide range of Old Norse materials from translated romances through Eddic poetry and slendingas gur sagas of Icelanders to indigenous romance Sif Rikhardsdottir is Professor of Comparative Literature at the University of Iceland and Vice Chair of the Institute of Research in Literature and Visual Arts

Screen Stories Carl Plantinga, 2018-04-06 As stories on screens claim a more pervasive and influential presence in contemporary culture Screen

Stories argues for a restructuring of film and media studies approach to ethics The Oxford Handbook of Religion and Emotion John Corrigan, 2008 This volume collects essays under four categories religious traditions religious life emotional states and historical and theoretical perspectives They describe the ways in which emotions affect various world religions and analyse the manner in which certain components of religious represent and shape emotional performance Women, Religion, and Emotions in Modern Germany and Beyond Lisa Fetheringill Zwicker, Martina Cucchiara, 2025 Analyzes the role of emotions in the religious lives of women from across Germany and Europe from the nineteenth century to the 1970s Scholarship on women and religion has focused primarily on the intersection between women's religious engagement and their emancipation This volume goes beyond that to examine the vital role religion has played in the private and public lives of German and European women Because emotions are central to the expression of religiosity it draws on approaches from the history of emotions to examine how women understood felt and practiced religion in their search for meaning Spanning from the nineteenth century to the 1970s the volume's essays show how religion helped women make sense of their lives It also illuminates the degree to which women used religion and its attendant emotional scripts to shape modern society and how religious discourses in turn shaped women's emotions and comportment in the public sphere The volume builds on recent research that shows that religion especially the religiosity of women remained a pressing public concern in modern Europe From anxieties over the religiosity of Bavarian servants to restrictive norms imposed on Jewish widows from the interfaith commitments of kindergarten teachers to the autobiographical narratives of aspiring Protestant deaconesses from the suffering of stigmatics in Germany and Belgium to Irish women's public narratives of their religiosity this book reveals how women's faith and attendant religious emotions have been central to their public and private lives Representing Emotions Helen Hills, 2017-05-15 Juxtaposing artistic and musical representations of the emotions with medical philosophical and scientific texts in Western culture between the Renaissance and the twentieth century the essays collected in this volume explore the ways in which emotions have been variously conceived configured represented and harnessed in relation to broader discourses of control excess and refinement Since the essays explore the interstices between disciplines e.g music and medicine history of art and philosophy and thereby disrupt established frameworks within the histories of art music and medicine traditional narrative accounts are challenged Here larger historical forces come into perspective as these papers suggest how both artistic and scientific representations of the emotions have been put to use in political social and religious struggles at a variety of different levels Emotions in Europe, 1517-1914 Katie Barclay, François Soyer, 2022-05-29 This four volume collection of primary sources focuses on the history of emotions in Europe and its empires between 1517 and 1914 Arranged chronologically each volume examines the subjects of the self family and community religion politics and law science and philosophy and art and culture The collection begins with the Reformation in 1517 as a key transformative moment in European history that required people to rethink the self belief and scientific knowledges all of which shaped and were shaped by emotion It ends with WW1 by which point psychology and modern frameworks for the self had become standard knowledges In between ideas and practices of emotion were not static and part of the history charted across these volumes is the making of a new vocabulary for emotions and the self Sources include letters diaries legal papers institutional records newspapers science and philosophical writings literature and art from a diversity of voices and perspectives Accompanied by extensive editorial commentary this collection will be of great interest to students of history and literature
