

THEORY OF MIND

The theory of mind is a concept in psychology that refers how someone ascribes mental states - such as beliefs, intentions, desires, and emotions - to both oneself and others.

DEFINITION

Premack & Woodruff (1978), the founders of the concept, explain theory of mind: "...one infers states that are not directly observable and one uses these states anticipatorily, to predict the behavior of others as well as one's own. These inferences, which amount to a theory of mind, are, to our knowledge, universal in human adults. " (p. 525).

COMPONENTS

- Perception: Perceptiveness can include the ability to identify facial expressions, body language, and other social cues that signal a person's emotional state.
- Perspective-taking: Perspective-taking refers to the capacity to put yourself in someone else's shoes. It involves looking at a situation from another person's point of view.

engaged in three analyses Each analyst works with the techniques of one of the three field theories Katz conveys the diverging thought processes and technical choices of each analyst and the potentially different therapeutic outcomes of the application of each model In the final chapters Katz moves beyond the specific field theories to articulate a concept of a general field which underlies the three field concepts She explores how to use this generalized field to find a form of common ground amongst the field theories conjecturing that this generalized concept has application beyond field theory to a greater range of psychoanalytic perspectives Contemporary Psychoanalytic Field Theory provides a clear and comprehensive guide that will appeal to psychoanalysts psychoanalytic psychotherapists mental health professionals and clinicians as well as philosophers psychologists sociologists and anthropologists The Handbook of Brain Theory and Neural Networks Michael A.
