Contemporary Consumer Culture Theory is a reflective assessment in theoretical empirical and evocative keys of the state of the field of consumer culture theory and an indication of the scholarly directions in which the discipline is evolving providing reflection upon a rapidly expanding discipline and altered consumption scapes by some of its prime movers The Theory and Practice of Local Government Reform Brian Dollery, Lorenzo Robotti, 2008-01-01 Structural reform has been one of the most important and yet one of the most neglected aspects of modern local government This book represents the first attempt since the early seventies at providing a comprehensive account of both the theory and practice of structural reform in local government in developed countries Using recent policy experience from seven different countries the authors present seminal theoretical perspectives on structural reforms in local governance and the policy implications deriving from them Written by well known scholars of local government from around the world this volume is a must read for all academics practitioners students and policymakers Giorgio Brosio University of Turin Italy The Active Consumer Marina Bianchi, 2006-05-10 The Active Consumer discusses how consumers seem to delight in trying new solutions and exploring new combinatory possibilities This book provides an economic theoretical understanding of this phenomenon and the many ways in which innovation can structure consumer choice The authors show from different points of view how central novelty can be in consumer behaviour how it relates to technical change and how new consumer capabilities are developed and organized Consumption: Theory and issues in the study of consumption Daniel Miller, 2001 Interactive Systems. Design, Specification, and Verification Philippe Palanque, Fabio Paterno, 2003-06-29 The wait for the year 2000 was marked by the fear of possible bugs that might have arisen at its beginning One additional fear we had during this wait was whether organising this event would have generated a boon or another bug The reasons for this fear originated in the awareness that the design of interactive systems is a fast moving area The type of research work presented at this unique event has received limited support from funding agencies and industries making it more difficult to keep up with the rapid technological changes occurring in interaction technology However despite our fear the workshop was successful because of the high quality level of participation and discussion Before discussing such results let us step back and look at the evolution of DSV IS Design Specification and Verification of Interactive Systems an international workshop that has been organised every year since 1994 The first books that addressed this issue in a complete and thorough manner were the collection of contributions edited by Harrison and Thimbleby and the book written by Alan Dix which focused on abstractions useful to highlight important concepts in the design of interactive systems Since then this area has attracted the interest of a wider number of research groups and some workshops on related topics started to be organised DSV IS had its origins in this spreading and growing interest The first workshop was held in a monastery located in the hills above Bocca di Magra Italy Property Rights, Consumption and the Market Process David E. Andersson, 2008-01-01 In this book David Emanuel

Andersson undertakes the difficult task of reconciling institutional theories of property rights transaction costs and norms with Austrian economics Lancaster's consumer theory regional economics and evolutionary economics The result is a success the connections outlined make sense and convincing illustrative cases are offered The book should be read by everyone interested in how the challenges to neoclassical equilibrium theory that have emerged since the 1960s are related Per Olof Bjuggren J nk ping University Sweden Property Rights Consumption and the Market Process extends property rights theory in new and exciting directions by combining complementary insights from Austrian institutional and evolutionary economics Mainstream economics tends to analyse property rights within a static equilibrium framework In this book David Andersson reformulates property rights theory as an evolutionary theory of the market process This original work includes many valuable insights and new analysis such as combining Yoram Barzel's theory of property rights Ludwig Lachmann's theory of capital the resource based view of the firm and the entrepreneurship theories of Frank Knight Joseph Schumpeter and Israel Kirzner applying Ronald Inglehart's theory of value change to discontinuities in how imitative behaviour influences consumer choice a new distributional perspective on the Hayekian knowledge problem a model of consumer choice that combines lexicographic characteristics and learning processes a methodological approach that considers the perceived causal and evidential utilities of a theory original empirical material hedonic price functions and case studies and new areas of application for important computer simulation results David Andersson's book will be warmly welcomed by heterodox economists and new institutional economists as well as economists of entrepreneurship studies regional development and urban planning
