India's Spatial Imaginations of South Asia Shibashis Chatterjee, 2018-12-14 Since India attained independence its foreign policy discourse has imagined its

South Asian neighbourhood through the politics of realism This imagination explicates state interest in South Asia by establishing it as a space of sovereign territoriality Even today India s foreign and security policies are primarily shaped by geopolitical centrism and remain unaffected by economic prosperity and community concerns As a part of the Oxford International Relations in South Asia series this volume examines alternative conceptions of South Asian space in terms of geo economics and community and justifies why they have been unable to replace its dominant understanding irrespective of the political regime This volume probes reasons behind the relevance of differentiated cartography of territorial nationalism in our shared understanding of space politics society and the community Human Well-Being and Policy in South Asia do text performance and rhetoric simultaneously reflect and challenge notions of distinct community and religious identities. This volume examines evidence of shared idioms of sanctity within a larger framework of religious nationalism, literary productions and communalism in South Asia. Contributors to this volume are particularly interested in how alternative forms of belonging and religious imaginations in South Asia are articulated in the light of normative authoritative and exclusive claims upon the representation of identities. Building upon new and extensive historiographical and ethnographical data, the book challenges clear cut categorizations of group identity and points to the complex historical and contemporary relationships between different groups/organizations in part by investigating the discursive formations that are often subsumed under binary distinctions of dominant/subaltern, Hindu/Muslim or orthodox/heterodox. In this respect, the book offers a theoretical contribution beyond South Asian Studies by highlighting a need for a new interdisciplinary effort in rethinking notions of identity, ethnicity and religion.

South Asia's Cold War Rajesh M. Basrur, 2008-04-28 This book is a ground breaking analysis of the India-Pakistan nuclear confrontation as a form of cold war that is a hostile relationship between nuclear rivals. Drawing on nuclear rivalries between similar pairs: United States-Soviet Union, United States-China, Soviet Union-China and United States-North Korea, the work examines the rise, process and potential end of the cold war between India and Pakistan. It identifies the three factors driving the India-Pakistan rivalry: ideational factors stemming from partition, oppositional roles created by the distribution of power in South Asia and the particular kind of relationship created by nuclear weapons. The volume assesses why India and Pakistan continue in non-crisis times to think about power and military force in outmoded ways embedded in pre-nuclear times and draws lessons applicable to them as well as to other contemporary nuclear powers and states that might be engaged in future cold wars.

Routledge Handbook of the International Relations of South Asia Sumit Ganguly, Frank O'Donnell, 2022-10-28 This handbook offers a comprehensive overview of the international relations of South Asia. South Asia as a region is increasingly assuming greater significance in global politics for a host of compelling reasons. This volume offers the most comprehensive collection of perspectives on the international politics of South Asia and it covers an extensive range of issues spanning from inter-state wars to migration in the region. Each contribution provides a careful discussion of the four major theoretical approaches to the study of international politics: Realism, Constructivism, Liberalism and Critical Theory. In turn, the chapters discuss the relevance of each approach to the issue area addressed in the book. The volume offers coverage of the key issues under four thematic sections: Theoretical Approaches to the Study of the International Relations of South Asia; Traditional and Emerging Security Issues in South Asia; The International Relations of South Asia; Cross-cutting Regional Issues. Further, every effort has been made in the chapters to discuss the origins, evolution and future direction of each issue. This book will be of much interest to students of South Asian politics, human security, regional security and International Relations in general.

War and Nationalism in South Asia Marcus Franke, 2009-01-21 This book presents and analyses the oldest sub-national war of postcolonial South Asia between the Indian state and the Nagas of Northeast India. It offers a serious and thorough political history on the Naga region over three periods: pre colonial, colonial, and post colonial. Drawing on a wealth of primary sources and comparative and theoretical literature, Marcus Franke demonstrates that agency and identity formation are an on going process that neither started nor ended with colonialism. Although the interaction of the local population with colonialism produced a Naga national identity, it was the emergence of the Indian political class with access to superior means of nation and state building that was able to undertake the modern Indo Naga war. This war firmly made the Nagas into a nation and that set them onto the road to independence. War and Nationalism in South Asia fundamentally revises our understanding of the existing histories of the Nagas by exposing them to be influenced by colonial or post colonial narratives of domination. Furthermore, by placing the region into the longue durée of state formation with its involved technique of imperial rule, the book presents a new approach to the study of nationalism and war in South Asia in general. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of politics, history, anthropology, and South Asian studies.

Decolonization in South Asia Sekhar Bandyopadhyay, 2009-06-03. This book explores the meanings and complexities of India's experience of transition from colonial to the post colonial period. It focuses on the first five years from independence on 15th August 1947 to the first general election in January 1952 in the politics of West Bengal, the new Indian province that was created as a result of the Partition. The author, a specialist on the history of modern India, discusses what freedom actually meant to various individuals, communities, and political parties; how they responded to it; how they extended its meaning; and how, in their anxiety to confront the realities of free India, they began to invent new enemies of their newly acquired freedom. By emphasising the representations of popular mentality rather than the institutional changes brought in by the process of decolonization, he draws attention to other concerns and anxieties that were related to the problems of coming to terms with the newly achieved freedom and the responsibility of devising independent rules of governance that would suit the historic needs of a pluralist nation. Decolonization in South Asia analyses the transitional politics of West Bengal in light of recent developments in postcolonial theory on nationalism, treating the nation as a space for contestation rather than a natural breeding ground for homogeneity in the complex political scenario of post independence India. It will appeal to academics interested in political science, sociology, social anthropology, and cultural and Asian studies.
