Moldova And The Transdnestr Republic:

The Role of the European Union in Moldova's Transnistria Conflict Florian Küchler, 2012-02-27 Since 1 January 2007 Moldova has been a direct neighbour of the European Union Nonetheless Moldova and the Russia dominated geopolitics of the Black Sea region receive still relatively little attention in the West This is all the more surprising as there remain a number of consequential political divisions and unresolved conflicts in the area One of them is the Transnistria conflict in Moldova This book is a contribution to the so far small research and policy agenda on Moldova and includes findings of several research trips to Moldova Transnistria and their neighbouring countries At first the study reassesses the Transnistria conflict Contrary to widely held assumptions this conflict is found to be mainly based on a clash of elites and geopolitical interests rather than on ethnic tensions The second part of the book analyses the interests official position actual impact and potential role of the EU in Moldova's internal separatist conflict and its related external tensions with Russia So far the EU has had a limited involvement in the conflict resolution efforts and in the international relations of Moldova This book concludes that it is becoming increasingly important and possible for the EU to get effectively involved in this region but that the scope of EU activities in Moldova and Transnistria depends on the country's relations with and on the actions in this area of the United States and Russia At its end the study offers recommendations for future EU policies directed at Moldova

Managing Conflict in the Former Soviet Union Alekseï Arbatov, Alekseï Georgievich Arbatov, 1997 This collaborative effort by Russian and American scholars documents Russian policy toward ethno national conflict in its near abroad American policy toward these conflicts and the attempts of international organizations to prevent and resolve them Case studies consider the causes dynamics and prospects of conflicts in Latvia the Crimea the Transdnestr region of Moldova Georgia Kazakhstan and the region of North Ossetia and Ingushetia Moldova and the Transdnestr Republic Nicholas Dima, 2001 Nicholas Dima provides a concise historical background of Moldova a former province of Romania from its years as a territory of the Soviet empire to the post Soviet era when Russia refused to relinquish its grasp on the disputed region Dima shows how Moscow is now attempting to regain its former geopolitical power by means of assistance to the self proclaimed Transdnestr region of Moldova the last Marxist stronghold in the former Soviet space through which it could potentially gain a new foothold on the Balkans and surprise Europe and the world once again Legacies of Totalitarian Language in the Discourse Culture of the Post-Totalitarian Era Ernest Andrews, 2011-05-19 This book is unique in its kind It is the first scholarly work to attempt a comprehensive and fairly detailed look into the lingering legacies of the communist totalitarian modes of thought and expression in the new discourse forms of the post totalitarian era The book gives also new and interesting insights into the ways the new presumably democratically minded political elites in post totalitarian Eastern Europe Russia and China manipulate language to serve their own political and economic agendas The book consists of ten discrete discussions nine case studies or chapters and an introduction Chapter 1 discusses patterns of continuity and change in the conceptual apparatus and linguistic habits of political science and sociology practiced in the Czech Republic before and after 1989 Chapter 2 analyzes lingering effects of communist propaganda language in the political discourse and behavior in post communist Poland Chapter 3 analyzes the legacy of Soviet semantics in post Soviet Moldovan politics through the prism of such politically contested words as democracy democratization and people Chapters 4 and 5 discuss the way in which communist patterns of thought and expression manifest themselves in the new political discourse in Romania and Bulgaria respectively Chapter 6 examines phenomena of change and continuity in the socio linguistic and socio political scene of post Soviet Latvia Chapter 7 analyzes the extent to which the language of the post communist Romanian media differs from the official language of the communist era Chapter 8 examines the evolution of Russian official discourse since the late eighties with a view of showing whether or not new phenomena in the evolution of post Soviet discourse represent new development or just a mutation of the value orientations of the old Soviet ideological apparatus Chapter 9 gives a detailed and lucid account of the evolution of both official and non official discourse in China since the end of the Mao era
