Spatial Search Gunther Maier, 2012-12-06 Two areas have fascinated me for a long time One is the micro economic theory of consumer behavior the other one the role of space in economic processes Usually the two don't go together very well In more advanced versions of microeconomic consumer theory its economic actor may face uncertainty have to allocate resources over time or have to take into account the characteristics of products but rarely deals with space He/she inhabits a spaceless point economy Regional Science on the other hand describes and analyzes the spatial structure and development of the economy but either ignores individual decision making altogether or treats it in a rather simplistic way In this book I try to bring together these two areas of interest of mine I do this by use of the microeconomic concept of search and placing it in an explicit spatial context The result in my opinion is a theoretical concept with fascinating implications a broad set of potential implications and numerous interesting research questions After reading this book where I layout the basic idea of spatial search describe its elements and discuss some of its implications I hope the reader will share this opinion There are still plenty of unanswered research questions in this part of economic theory Hopefully this book will stimulate more work along these lines

Perspectives in Psychological Experimentation Viktor Sarris, Allen Parducci, 2024-03-08 One response to questions about the future of psychology is to attempt an answer to another question What have we learned from psychology's past Originally published in 1984 reissued here with a new preface this book presents a collection of original papers by authorities with international reputations in various fields of psychology at the time Contributors were invited to appraise the past of their own research specialties with an eye toward the future The emphasis is upon the more scientific areas of psychological research The catalyst for this book was an international conference honoring Gustav A. Lienert held in 1981 Psychologists from both Western and Eastern Europe North and South America and representing fields as different as psychophysics is from clinical psychology or animal memory from human decision making described their research and argued the prospects for the future of experimental psychology Most of the arguments found their way into this book where readers could confront the different viewpoints at the time and those reading it today can see how accurate their predictions were for the future
