Carr, 1988 Though not a systematic theologian Thomas Merton spent a lifetime writing in an immensely appealing way about the monastic tradition and mystical theology One of the fundamental questions he examined was that of the self for Merton the recovery of the true self is the liberation of the image of God in us This study explores that process in the context of a few of Merton's works showing his own development from pious hostility to the world to a more humbling acceptance of humanity The first full length appraisal of Merton as theologian this is well written but contains a few too many abstract phrasessomething Merton in his best work eschewed The Spirit of Early Christian Thought Robert Louis Wilken, 2003-01-01 Focusing on major figures such as St Augustine and Gregory of Nyssa as well as a host of less well known thinkers Robert Wilken the author of The First Thousand Years A Global History of Christianity chronicles the emergence of a specifically Christian intellectual tradition He provides an introduction to early Christian thought on topics including early Christian worship Christian poetry and the spiritual life the Trinity Christ the Bible and icons and shows that the energy and vitality of early Christianity arose from within the life of the Church While early Christian thinkers drew on the philosophical and rhetorical traditions of the ancient world it was the versatile vocabulary of the Bible that loosened their tongues and minds and allowed them to construct the world anew intellectually and spiritually These thinkers were not seeking to invent a world of ideas Wilken shows but rather to win the hearts of men and women and to change their lives Early Christian thinkers set in place a foundation that has endured Their writings are an irreplaceable inheritance and Wilken shows that they can still be heard as living voices within contemporary culture Essential Prosperity Napoleon Hill, James Allen, Wallace D.
