lively and comprehensive view of what behavioral scientists have learned about the effects of personal appearance. A wealth of illustrations and photographs give visual support to the evidence presented. The book explores the view that people believe good looking individuals possess almost all the virtues known to humankind; consequently they treat the good looking and ugly very differently. Mirror Mirror reviews the stereotypes held about people with specific characteristics and it explains the impact of height, weight, and attributes such as hair color, eye color, and facial hair on the course of social encounters. The authors show that through time these reaction patterns have their effect and that good looking and unattractive persons come to be different types of people. To show the relative nature of concepts of beauty, the authors also present examples of what other cultures consider attractive.
