Building the New World Valerie Fraser, 2000 Brasilia Caracas Mexico City Rio de Janeiro these are cities synonymous with some of the most innovative and progressive architecture of the twentieth century The period between 1930 and 1960 in particular when many Latin American economies expanded rapidly was an era of incomparable inventiveness and creative production as the various governments strove to shake off their colonial pasts and make public their modernising intentions This book focuses on major state funded architectural projects featuring not only the high profile prestigious building like the House of Representatives in Brasilia but also social architecture such as schools and low cost housing developments Architects like Pani Costa Reidy and Niemeyer who undertook this work with considerable autonomy and significant financial resources in effect became social planners their avant garde aesthetic and technical experimentation often being teamed with radical social agendas By 1960 the year in which Brasilia was inaugurated economic growth in the region was slowing and faith in the modernist project in general was faltering The English speaking world which had previously endorsed and even envied Latin American architectural production changed its opinion and largely dismissed it from the history of twentieth century architecture Building the New World redresses the balance It provides an accessible introduction to the most important examples of state funded modernism in Latin America during a period of almost unimaginable optimism when politicians and architects saw architecture as literally a way of building themselves out of underdevelopment and into the new world of a culturally rich and socially inclusive future
