Modernisation And Tradition European Local And Manorial Societies 15001900:

Modernisation and Tradition Kerstin Sundberg, 2004-01-01 This anthology is based on a symposium which had as its key issue a critical discussion of different theories of modernisation from the perspective of people's activities in local manorial societies Modernisation can be studied in terms of changing values norms and social relationships From a theoretical point of view the book makes use of the possibility to change main macro conceptions of the modernisation process using dichotomies such as feudal capitalist and individual collective and it also tries to integrate tradition and continuity perspective

Agricultural Enlightenment Peter Jones, 2016 Agricultural Enlightenment explores the modernization of the rural economy in Europe through the lens of the Enlightenment It focuses on the second half of the eighteenth century and emphasizes the role of useful knowledge in the process of agrarian change and agricultural development As such it invites economic historians to respond to the challenge issued by Joel Mokyr to look beyond quantitative data and to take seriously the argument that cultural factors broadly understood may have aided or hindered the evolution of agriculture in the early modern period what people knew and believed had a direct bearing on their economic behavior Mokyr The Enlightened Economy Evidence in support of the idea that a readily accessible supply of agricultural knowledge helps to explain the trajectory of the rural economy is drawn from all of the countries of Europe The book includes two cases studies of rapid rural modernization in Scotland and Denmark where Agricultural Enlightenment was swiftly followed by full scale Agricultural Revolution

On Mediation Karl Härter, Carolin F. Hillemanns, Günther Schlee, 2020-09-09 Exploring mediation and related practices of conflict regulation this book takes an interdisciplinary approach that includes historical legal anthropological and international perspectives Divided into three sections the volume observes historical and current relations between mediation and the criminal justice system and provides anthropological perspectives and case studies to explore mediation and arbitration in international arenas In this regard the book provides an innovative perspective on mediation and new insights into conflict regulation

Methods in Premodern Economic History Ulla Kypta, Julia Bruch, Tanja Skambraks, 2019-10-15 This edited collection demonstrates how economic history can be analysed using both quantitative and qualitative methods connecting statistical research with the social cultural and psychological aspects of history With their focus on the time between the end of the commercial revolution and the Black Death c 1300 and the Thirty Years War c 1600 Kypta et al redress a significant lack of published work regarding economic history methodology in the premodern period Case studies stem from the Holy Roman Empire one of the most important economic regions in premodern times and reconnect the German premodern economic history approach with the grand narratives that have been developed mainly for Western European regions Methodological approaches stemming from economics as well as from sociology and cultural studies show how multifaceted research in economic history can be and how it might accordingly offer us new insights into premodern economies Chapters 9 and 10 are available open access under

Bin Wong, 2019-01-15 A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press's Open Access publishing program Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more Scholarly discussions on economic development in history specifically those linked to industrialization or modern economic growth have paid great attention to the formation and development of the market economy as a set of institutions able to augment people's welfare The role of specific nonmarket practices for promoting the economic development and welfare has been a distinct concern typically involving discussion of the state's economic policies How have societies tackled those issues that the market did not To what extent did those solutions reflect the structure of an economy Public Goods Provision in the Early Modern Economy explores these questions by investigating efforts made for the provision of public goods in early modern economies from the perspective of Japanese socioeconomic history during Tokugawa era 1603-1868 and by comparing those cases with others from Europe and China's economic history The contributors focus on three areas of inquiry early modern era welfare policies for the poor infrastructure and forest management to provide both a unique perspective on Japanese public finance at local levels and a vantage point outside of Europe to encourage a more global view of early modern political economies that shaped subsequent modern transformations World Development Report 2009 World Bank, 2008-11-04 Rising densities of human settlements migration and transport to reduce distances to market and specialization and trade facilitated by fewer international divisions are central to economic development The transformations along these three dimensions density distance and division are most noticeable in North America Western Europe and Japan but countries in Asia and Eastern Europe are changing in ways similar in scope and speed World Development Report 2009 Reshaping Economic Geography concludes that these spatial transformations are essential and should be encouraged The conclusion is not without controversy Slum dwellers now number a billion but the rush to cities continues Globalization is believed to benefit many but not the billion people living in lagging areas of developing nations High poverty and mortality persist among the world's bottom billion while others grow wealthier and live longer lives Concern for these three billion often comes with the prescription that growth must be made spatially balanced The WDR has a different message economic growth is seldom balanced and efforts to spread it out prematurely will jeopardize progress The Report documents how production becomes more concentrated spatially as economies grow proposes economic integration as the principle for promoting successful spatial transformations revisits the debates on urbanization territorial development and regional integration and shows how today's developers can reshape economic geography Reshaping Economic Geography World Bank, 2009

Places do well when they promote transformations along the dimensions of economic geography higher densities as cities grow shorter distances as workers and businesses migrate closer to density and fewer divisions as nations lower their economic borders and enter world markets to take advantage of scale and trade in specialized products World Development Report 2009 concludes that the transformations along these three dimensions density distance and division are essential for development and should be encouraged The conclusion is controversial Slum dwellers now number a billion but the rush to cities continues A billion people live in lagging areas of developing nations remote from globalization's many benefits And poverty and high mortality persist among the world's bottom billion trapped without access to global markets even as others grow more prosperous and live ever longer lives Concern for these three intersecting billions often comes with the prescription that growth must be spatially balanced This report has a different message economic growth will be unbalanced To try to spread it out is to discourage it to fight prosperity not poverty But development can still be inclusive even for people who start their lives distant from dense economic activity For growth to be rapid and shared governments must promote economic integration the pivotal concept as this report argues in the policy debates on urbanization territorial development and regional integration Instead all three debates overemphasize place based interventions Reshaping Economic Geography reframes these debates to include all the instruments of integration spatially blind institutions spatially connective infrastructure and spatially targeted interventions By calibrating the blend of these instruments today's developers can reshape their economic geography If they do this well their growth will still be unbalanced but their development will be inclusive Book cover Book Review Index, 2006 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation Una sociedad conyugal
