Designing Tito's Capital Brigitte Le Normand, 2014-07-21 The devastation of World War II left the Yugoslavian capital of Belgrade in ruins Communist Party leader Josip Broz Tito saw this as a golden opportunity to recreate the city through his own vision of socialism In Designing Tito's Capital Brigitte Le Normand analyzes the unprecedented planning process called for by the new leader and the determination of planners to create an urban environment that would benefit all citizens Led first by architect Nikola Dobrovic and later by Milos Somborski planners blended the predominant school of European modernism and the socialist principles of efficient construction and space usage to produce a model for housing green space and working environments for the masses A major influence was modernist Le Corbusier and his Athens Charter published in 1943 which called for the total reconstruction of European cities transforming them into compact and verdant vertical cities unfettered by slumlords private interests and traffic congestion As Yugoslavia transitioned toward self management and market socialism the functionalist district of New Belgrade and its modern living were lauded as the model city of socialist man The glow of the utopian ideal would fade by the 1960s when market socialism had raised expectations for living standards and the government was eager for inhabitants to finance their own housing By 1972 a new master plan emerged under Aleksandar Dordevic fashioned with the assistance of American experts Espousing current theories about systems and rational process planning and using cutting edge computer technology the new plan left behind the dream for a functionalist Belgrade and instead focused on managing growth trends While the public resisted aspects of the new planning approach that seemed contrary to socialist values it embraced the idea of a decentralized city connected by mass transit Through extensive archival research and personal interviews with participants in the planning process Le Normand's comprehensive study documents the evolution of New Belgrade and its adoption and ultimate rejection of modernist principles while also situating it within larger continental and global contexts of politics economics and urban planning

Architecture in Development Aggregate Architectural History Collaborative, 2022-04-25 This extensive text investigates how architects planners and other related experts responded to the contexts and discourses of development after World War II Development theory did not manifest itself in tracts of economic and political theory alone It manifested itself in every sphere of expression where economic predicaments might be seen to impinge on cultural factors Architecture appears in development discourse as a terrain between culture and economics in that practitioners took on the mantle of modernist expression while also acquiring government contracts and immersing themselves in bureaucratic processes This book considers how for a brief period architects planners structural engineers and various practitioners of the built environment employed themselves in designing all the intimate spheres of life but from a consolidated space of expertise Seen in these terms development was to cite Arturo Escobar an immense design project itself one that requires radical disassembly and rethinking beyond the umbrella terms of global modernism and colonial modernities which risk erasing the sinews of conflict encountered in globalizing and modernizing architecture Encompassing countries as diverse as Israel Ghana Greece Belgium France India Mexico the United States Venezuela the Philippines South Korea Sierra Leone Singapore Turkey Cyprus Iraq Zambia and Canada the set of essays in this book cannot be considered exhaustive nor a field guide in the traditional sense Instead it offers theoretical reflections from the field based on extensive archival research This book sets out to examine the arrays of power resources technologies networking and knowledge that cluster around the term development and the manner in which architects and planners negotiated these thickets in their multiple capacities as knowledge experts as technicians as negotiators and as occasional authorities on settlements space domesticity education health and every other field where arguments for development were made

Social Justice in Twentieth-Century Europe Martin Conway, Camilo Erlichman, 2024-02-28 Social justice has returned to the heart of political debate in present day Europe But what does it mean in different national histories and political regimes and how has this changed over time This book provides the first historical account of the evolution of notions of social justice across Europe since the late nineteenth century Written by an international team of leading historians the book analyses the often divergent ways in which political movements state institutions intellectual groups and social organisations have understood and sought to achieve social justice Conceived as an emphatically European analysis covering both the eastern and western halves of the continent Social Justice in Twentieth Century Europe demonstrates that no political movement ever held exclusive ownership of the meaning of social justice Conversely its definition has always been strongly contested between those who would define it in terms of equality of conditions or of opportunity the security provided by state authority or the freedom of personal initiative the individual rights of a liberal order or the social solidarities of class nation confession or Volk

Imagining Outer Space Alexander C.T. Geppert, 2018-04-25 Imagining Outer Space makes a captivating advance into the cultural history of outer space and extraterrestrial life in the European imagination. How was outer space conceived and communicated? What promises of interplanetary expansion and cosmic colonization propelled the project of human spaceflight to the forefront of twentieth-century modernity? In what way has West European astroculture been affected by the continuous exploration of outer space? Tracing the thriving interest in spatiality to early attempts at exploring imaginary worlds beyond our own, the book analyzes contact points between science and fiction from a transdisciplinary perspective and examines sites and situations where utopian images and futuristic technologies contributed to the omnipresence of fantasmatic thought. Bringing together state-of-the-art work in this emerging field of historical research, the volume breaks new ground in the historicization of the Space Age.

Landscapes of Housing Jeanne Haffner, 2021-09-29 In the twenty-first century, housing has become a site of ecological experimentation and environmental remediation. From the vantage point of contemporary architecture, conservation concerns and emergent building science technologies support one another with new processes and materials deployed to reduce energy usage, water consumption, and carbon dioxide emissions. Landscapes of Housing examines this trend in historical perspective, arguing for a more considered environmental vision that includes the organic, social, and cultural dimensions of landscape. By shifting the focus from architecture, the book highlights and critiques the relationship between dwelling and landscape itself. Contributors from a wide range of international perspectives propose a more integrative ecology that includes history, culture, society, and materiality in addition to technology within contemporary ecological housing programs. This book will be a resource for upper-level students, academics, and researchers in landscape architecture interested in the social and political implications of ecological housing Women and Mass Consumer Society in Postwar France Rebecca Pulju, 2011-02-14 Examines the emergence of a citizen consumer role for women during postwar modernization and reconstruction in France Nostradamus Stéphane Gerson, 2012-10-30 We all know the name Nostradamus but who was he really Why did his predictions become so influential in Renaissance Europe and then keep resurfacing for nearly five centuries And what does Nostradamus's endurance in the West say about us and our own world In Nostradamus How an Obscure Renaissance Astrologer Became the Modern Prophet of Doom historian Stéphane Gerson takes readers on a journey back in time to explore the life and afterlife of Michel de Nostredame the astrologer whose Prophecies have been interpreted adopted by successive media and eventually transformed into the Gospel of Doom for the modern age Whenever we seem to enter a new era whenever the premises of our worldview are questioned or imperiled Nostradamus offers certainty and solace In 1666 guests at posh English dinner parties discussed his quatrain about the Great Fire of London In 1942 the Jewish writer Irène Némirovsky latched her hopes for survival to Nostradamus prediction that the war would soon end And on September 12 2001 teenagers proclaimed on the streets of Brooklyn that this guy Nostradamus had seen the 9/11 attacks coming Through prodigious research in European and American archives Gerson shows that Nostradamus a creature of the modern West rather than a vestige from some antediluvian era tells us more about our past and our present than about our future In chronicling the life of this mystifying figure and the lasting fascination with his predictions Gerson's book becomes a historical biography of a belief the faith that we can know tomorrow and master our anxieties through the powers of an extraordinary but ever more elusive seer Transnationalism and the German City J. Diefendorf, J. Ward, 2014-04-24 Too often scholars treat transnationalism as a conflict in which the local regional and national give way to globalized identity As these varied studies of German cities show though the urban environment is actually a site of translocalism that is not merely oppositional but that adapts itself dialectically to the forces of globalization
