

THE ODD LAST THING SHE DID

A car is idling on the cliff.
Its top is down. Its headlights throw
A faint, bright ghost-shadow glow
On the pale air. On the shore, so far
Below that the waves' push and drag
Is dwindled to a hush—a kind
Of oceanic idle—the sea
Among the boulders plays a blind-
Fold game of hide and seek,
Or capture the flag. The flag
Swells and sways. The car
Is empty. A Friday, the first week
Of June. Nineteen fifty-three.

A car's idling on the cliff,
But surely it won't be long before
Somebody stops to investigate
And things begin to happen fast:
Men, troops of men will come,
Arrive with blazing lights, a blast
Of sirens, followed by still more
Men. Though not a soul's in sight,
The peace of the end of the late
Afternoon—the sun down, but enough light
Even so to bathe the heavens from
Horizon to shore in a deep
And delicate blue—will not keep.

Confronted with such an overload
Of questions (most beginning, Why would she . . .
So gifted, bright, and only twenty-three),
Attention will come to fix upon
This odd last thing she did: leaving
The car running, the headlights on.
She stopped—it will transpire—to fill
The tank a mere two miles down the road.
(Just sixteen, the kid at the station will Quote her as saying, "What a pity

The Old Current Brad Leithauser, 2025-03-04 MacArthur Fellowship winning poet Brad Leithauser returns with his first new collection in more than a decade a collection that recalls the delicacy and intimacy of his early award winning volumes and embraces the wisdom of age As snappy as a dinner jacket's red silk lining as appealing as a piano interlude in jazz Brad Leithauser's robust felicity is a balm in grim times It's also the perfect vehicle for nostalgia regret and surprise forces that animate his first collection in more than a decade By turns laugh out loud funny and deeply thoughtful this collection balances wisdom and practicality as with deft care Leithauser easily often unexpectedly juggles off rhymes and old forms and new The book unfolds like a five act play moving from chattier poems to dramatic denouements In the collection's two Darker sections we meet folks learning to say goodbye from a three year old's cry I love you so loud A Young Farewell to a reckoning with words formed Forty Five Years On Time presses in continually In

What God Took Your Legs Away: Poems Wahid Al Mamun, 2025-07-05 These poems strive to leap out of the collection These poems build a bed watch a cult film read the news They take endless flights between the personal and the political between the specific contours of Singapore's landscape and the broader trajectories of global movements and inequity But they can never find their way home it took me eight years but here I am carving carving against my wounds until I hit the bone and start Written over eight years Wahid Al Mamun's debut collection of poems is an intricate exploration of migration memory and love built on the intersections of private griefs and communal narratives uttered in a voice both tender and unflinching What God Took Your Legs Away deftly interrogates the tensions between the body the nation and their intertwined histories and asks what it means to write with and against one's be longings It'll bring you to your knees and take your breath away
