Hydrojustice Andreas Philippopoulos-Mihalopoulos, 2025-07-14 This is a book about justice but not as we know it Andreas Philippopoulos Mihalopoulos argues that justice is always hydrojustice that is always defined in relation to water the element that constitutes and unites all bodies human and nonhuman Hence justice is not an ideal state reached through merely human procedures legal political economic etc but also a planetary one always conjoined with the element of water that both constitutes and transcends the boundaries of the human In short hydrojustice is the just confluence of all bodies human and nonhuman For the first time this book brings questions of justice into line with the current literature on water Up to now justice has been understood as an anthropocentric affair with most existing theories accepting and reinforcing the division between human and nonhuman This book builds on feminism ecology posthumanism and the current Blue Turn in the humanities and social sciences and puts questions of justice at their core What the book proposes however is not simply an ecological concept of justice Rather through examples taken from current affairs science and the art world it attempts a radical recalibration of what justice is The book argues that hydrojustice is already here part of our planetary condition but it requires unearthing in the double sense of revealing what is hidden and allowing earth to cede priority to the aquatic

In Search of the Black Fantastic Richard Iton, 2008-06-06 Prior to the 1960s when African Americans had little access to formal political power black popular culture was commonly seen as a means of forging community and effecting political change But as Richard Iton shows in this provocative and insightful volume despite the changes brought about by the civil rights movement and contrary to the wishes of those committed to narrower conceptions of politics black artists have continued to play a significant role in the making and maintenance of critical social spaces Iton offers an original portrait of the relationship between popular culture and institutionalized politics tracing the connections between artists such as Paul Robeson Lorraine Hansberry Richard Pryor Bob Marley and Erykah Badu and those individuals working in the protest electoral and policy making arenas With an emphasis on questions of class gender and sexuality and diaspora and coloniality the author also illustrates how creative artists destabilize modern notions of the proper location of politics and politics itself Ranging from theater to film and comedy to literature and contemporary music In Search of the Black Fantastic is an engaging and sophisticated examination of how black popular culture has challenged our understandings of the aesthetic and its relationship to politics
