Movie-Struck Girls Shelley Stamp, 2018-06-05 Movie Struck Girls examines women's films and filmgoing in the 1910s a period when female patronage was energetically courted by the industry for the first time By looking closely at how women were invited to participate in movie culture the films they were offered and the visual pleasures they enjoyed Shelley Stamp demonstrates that women significantly complicated cinemagoing throughout this formative transitional era Growing female patronage and increased emphasis on women's subject matter did not necessarily bolster cinema's cultural legitimacy as many in the industry had hoped for women were not always enticed to the cinema by dignified uplifting material and once there they were not always seamlessly integrated in the social space of theaters nor the new optical pleasures of film viewing In fact Stamp argues that much about women's films and filmgoing in the postnickelodeon years challenged rather than served the industry's drive for greater respectability White slave films action adventure serial dramas and women's suffrage photoplays all drew female audiences to the cinema with stories aimed directly at women's interests and with advertising campaigns that specifically targeted female moviegoers Yet these examples suggest that women's patronage was built with stories focused on sexuality sensational thrill seeking and feminist agitation topics not normally associated with ladylike gentility And in each case concerns were raised about women's conduct at cinemas and the viewing habits they enjoyed demonstrating that women's integration into motion picture culture was not as smooth as many have thought

Mental Health, Gender, and the Rise of Sport Gerald R. Gems, 2024-07-17 Mental Health Gender and the Rise of Sport explores the historical role of sport in the prescription for mental and physical health through the epidemic of neurasthenia a debilitating neurological disorder that afflicted American society throughout the latter nineteenth century Gerald R Gems argues that the practice of sport and sport spectatorship which grew concomitantly with the onset and spread of neurasthenia provided both a physical preventative and a psychological escape to redress the perceived causes of the epidemic Sports such as baseball boxing cycling and football offered psychological relief from the stresses of a rapidly changing economic and social order Cycling in particular provided women with the means to challenge the prescribed gender order of female domesticity male hegemony and the dictates of physically restrictive fashion In the process sport became a key component in the rise of feminism and a prescription for the epidemics that followed over the course of the twentieth and twenty first centuries Shades of Difference Richard Rees, 2007-02-23 From its prehistory in the biological theories of racial difference formulated in the 1800s to its current position in academic debate Richard Rees investigates the diverse fields of scholarship from which the multifaceted understanding of the term ethnicity is derived At the same time Rees traces the broader historical forces that shaped the needs to which the concept of ethnicity responded and the social purposes to which it was applied Centrally he focuses upon the emergence of ethnicity in the early 1940s as a means of resolving contradictions and ambiguities in the racial status of European immigrants and its subsequent legacy and implications on race and caste Shades of Difference introduces new perspectives on the definition of whiteness in America and makes an original contribution to the larger discussion of race through a detailed account of ethnicity s original meaning and its revaluation when later appropriated by the discourse of Black Nationalism in the 1960s and 70s Rees has produced a powerful new analysis of the cultural and political history of ethnicity in America
