Making Good In The Ministry:

Making Good the Claim Rufus Burrow, 2016-02-16 The Church of God Reformation Movement founded in 1881 has the distinction of having been founded on the two core principles of holiness and visible unity Standard histories of the group proudly argue that the founder and pioneers exhibited a zeal for interracial unity that began to wane only in the early years of the twentieth century This book rejects that claim and argues instead that little to no extant hard evidence supports that view Moreover Making Good the Claim argues that while blacks eagerly joined the group they did so not because whites expended much energy evangelizing among them but because they heard something deeper in the message of holiness and visible unity than God's expectation that members achieve spiritual and church unity Unlike most whites blacks interpreted the message to call for unity along racial lines as well This book challenges members of the Church of God to begin forthwith to make good their historic claim about holiness and visible unity particularly as it applies to interracial unity Making a

Good Church Great Steve Sjogren, 2010-02-25 Bestselling author Steve Sjogren untangles the complex jumble commonly known as greatness in today's megachurch mega everything world As a successful pastor he launched the servant evangelism movement but along the way he discovered that significance was not where or what he thought it would be Now in a very practical book he focuses on genuine greatness Is it the size of the sanctuary The number of new believers baptized each year The youth attendance The quantity of bestselling books the pastor has written The list of television shows radio shows or podcasts the pastors appears on Or is it something more What is the buzz on good churches that become great in God's eyes Sjogren argues that greatness is not a point at which you arrive rather it is an ongoing process of worshipping serving and living in God's presence It not a slick program rather it is a family a hospital an army and a school When God is present his people are empowered When God empowers his people a good church becomes great Ministry Marketing

For the Good of the Church Gabrielle Thomas, 2021-02-26 What do we need to learn and receive from the other to help us address challenges or wounds in our own tradition That is the key question asked in what has come to be known as receptive ecumenism And nowhere is this question more pressing and pertinent than in women's experiences within the church Based on qualitative research from five focus groups For the Good of the Church expose the difficulties women face when they work in a church sexism unfulfilled vocation and abuse of power and privilege as well as the wide range of gifts and skills which women bring in light of these The second part of the book continues to draw on the particular wounds and gifts which arise in the focus groups Specific case studies are used to identify gifts of theology practice experience vocation and power Against negative prognoses of an ecumenical winter Gabrielle Thomas reveals how radically different theological and ecclesiological perspectives can be a space for learning and receiving gifts for the well being of the whole Church

Creating the Future of the Church Keith Elford, 2013-09-19 What are the conditions that allow organizations and those within them to thrive What happens when those conditions are applied to the Church Deeply aware that more could be done to guarantee a successful future for the Church as an organization Keith Elford explores the challenges it faces and urges us to take a more coherent approach to the way we think about and do church In recent years research and practical learning have taken the Church a long way from the managerialism about which many people are understandably sceptical Thus the aim of Creating the Future of the Church is to provide a practicable framework and process to allow readers to find their own answers to ensure the Church's organizational health and effectiveness How to Make the Church Go William Herman Leach, 1922 HC 808 - Implementing Reforms to Civil Legal Aid Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Committee of Public Accounts, 2015 The Ministry of Justice is on track to make a significant and rapid reduction to the amount that it spends on civil legal aid However it introduced major changes on the basis of no evidence in many areas and without making good use of the evidence that it did have in other areas It has been slow to fill the considerable gaps in its understanding and has not properly assessed the full impact of the reforms Almost two years after the reforms the Ministry is still playing catch up it does not know if those still eligible are able to access legal aid and it does not understand the link between the price it pays for legal aid and the quality of advice being given Moreover the Ministry s approach to implementing the reforms has inhibited access to mediation for family law cases which can be a cost effective alternative to court for resolving disputes Amazingly it failed to foresee that removing legal aid funding for solicitors would reduce the number of referrals to family mediation Perhaps most worryingly of all it does not understand and has shown little interest in the knock on costs of its reforms across the public sector It therefore does not know whether the projected 300 million spending reduction in its own budget is outweighed by additional costs elsewhere The Department therefore does not know whether the savings in the civil legal aid budget represent value for money
