become a commonplace that Biblical religion bears a heavy share of responsibility for our destruction of the environment and this passage from the King James version of the Bible exemplifies what is generally believed to be the Biblical attitude toward the earth In this provocative book however Norman Wirzba argues that the doctrine of creation when understood as a statement about the moral and spiritual meaning of the world actually holds the key to a true understanding of our place in the environment and our responsibility toward it Wirzba contends that an adequate response to environmental destruction depends on a new formulation of ourselves as part of a created whole rather than as autonomous unencumbered individuals Drawing on the work of biblical scholars ecologists agrarians philosophers theologians and cultural critics Wirzba develops a comprehensive worldview that grows out of the idea that the world is God s creation While the text of Genesis has historically encouraged a vision of persons as masters of creation a more theologically and ecologically sensitive rendering he says would be to say that we are servants of creation Our present culture Wirzba believes results from a denial of creation that has caused modern problems as diverse as rootlessness individualism careerism boredom and consumerism The recovery of the meaning of creation can lead to a renewed sense of human identity and vocation and happier more peaceful lives He concludes by offering practical advice for individuals who wish to begin the work of transformation and renewal Moving beyond the usual political debates The Paradise of God presents a compelling vision of a new religious environmentalism
