Making Capitalism In China:

Making Capitalism in China You-tien Hsing, 1998 Making Capitalism in China The Taiwan Connection shows that small and medium sized Taiwanese investors are organized in production and marketing networks not vertically integrated conglomerates When in China they directly negotiate and establish partnerships with entrepreneurial local officials not the central bureaucracy Also they effectively transfer a capitalist ideology of production to Chinese factory workers Importantly the investors attribute their business successes in China to the cultural historical and linguistic affinities they share with these local agents Connections regarding socio cultural identity do more than facilitate business dealings or ease labor relations Hsing asserts that partnerships between mainland settlements and overseas Chinese investors constitute a local global coalition of economic reform one that strengthens local autonomy in China and bypasses the control of the central government This coalition is nothing short of a new pattern of foreign direct investment one profoundly influenced by both cultural boundaries usually deemed insignificant in matters of capital flow and globalization and local state agents who operate in this case as crucial business partners A notable work that will appeal to all students of East Asian economic organization ethnic business networks international investment and the political economy of socialist transition Hsing's book is based on hundreds of interviews and participatory observations that she conducted between 1991 and 1996 with investors local officials and factory workers in Taiwan Hong Kong Guangdong Fujian and Shanghai

Chinese urbanization process one must recognize the distinctive political economy of China After a long period as a planned socialist economy China's rapid entry into the global economy has raised suggestions that modernization in China will inevitably result in urban patterns and features like those of cities in developed market economies This book argues that this is unlikely in the short term because processes of urban transition in China must be interpreted through the lens of a unique and unprecedented juxtaposition of socialism and the market economy which is leading to distinctive patterns of Chinese urbanization Richly illustrated with maps diagrams and in depth case studies this book will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars of urban economics and policy geography and the development of China
