Making Equity Planning Work:

Making Equity Planning Work Norman Krumholz, John Forester, 1990-05-18 From 1969 to 1979 Cleveland's city planning staff under Norman Krumholz's leadership conducted a unique experiment in equity oriented planning. Fighting to defend the public welfare while also assisting the city's poorest citizens, these planners combined professional competence and political judgment to bring pressing urban issues to the public's attention. Although frequently embroiled in controversy while serving three different mayors, the Cleveland planners not only survived but accomplished impressive equity objectives. In this book, Norman Krumholz and John Forester provide the first detailed personal account of a sustained and effective equity planning practice that influenced urban policy. Krumholz describes the pragmatic equity planning agenda that his staff pursued during the mayoral administrations of Carl B. Stokes, Ralph J. Perk, and Dennis J. Kucinich. He presents case studies illuminated with rich personal experience of the Euclid Beach development, the Clark Freeway, and the tax delinquency and land banking project that resulted in a change in the State of Ohio's property law, among others. In the second part of the book, John Forester explores the implications of this experience and the lessons that can be drawn for planning public management and administrative practice more generally.

Beiträge Zur 15. Internationalen Konferenz Zu Stadtplanung, Regionalentwicklung und Informationsgesellschaft Manfred Schrenk, 2010 Compromise Planning : A Theoretical Approach from a Distant Corner of Europe Louis C. Wassenhoven, 2022-03-28 The purpose of the book is to elaborate a planning theory which departs from the plethora of theories which reflect the conditions of developed countries of the North West The empirical material of this effort is derived from a country Greece which sits on the edge between North West and South East at the corner of Europe No doubt there is extensive international literature on planning theory in general from a bewildering variety of viewpoints The interested professional or student of urban and regional planning is certainly aware of the dizzying flood of books articles and research reports on planning theory and of their never ending borrowing of obscure concepts from more respectable scientific disciplines from mathematics to philosophy and from physics to economics human geography and sociology He or she probably observed that there is a growing interest in theoretical approaches from the viewpoint of the so called Global South The author of the present book has for many decades faced the impasse of attempting to transplant theories founded on the experience of the North West to countries with a totally different historical political social and geographical background He learned that the reality that planners face is unpredictable patchy and responsive to social processes frequently of a very pedestrian nature Planning strives to deal with private interests which planners are keen to envelop in a single public interest which is extremely hard to define The behaviour of the average citizen far from being that of the neoclassical model of the homo economicus is that of an individual a kind of homo individualis who interacts with the state and the public administration within a complex web of mutual dependence and negotiation The state and its administrative apparatus i e the key determinants and fixers of urban and regional planning policy bargain with this individual offer inducements exemptions derogations and privileges deviate unhesitatingly from their grand policy pronouncements but still defend the rationality and comprehensiveness of the planning system they have legislated and operationalized It is by and large a successful modus vivendi but only thanks to a constant practice of compromise Hence the term compromise planning which the author coined as an alternative to all the existing theoretical forms of planning This is the sort of planning and of the accompanying theory with which he deals in this book It is the outcome of experience and knowledge accumulated in a long personal journey of academic teaching in England and Greece research and professional involvement
