Should Gen be restricted to generating phonetically interpretable candidates 3 What is the relationship between Gen and functionally arbitrary or opaque phonological patterns Should Gen's freedom be restricted in order to account for language specific phonology The solutions offered to these questions bear significantly on current issues that are of fundamental concern in linguistic theory including representations parallelism vs serialism and the division of labour between linguistic modules The authors scrutinize these issues using data from a variety of unrelated languages including Czech English Greek Haitian Creole Hawaiian Lardil Spanish Turkish and Yowlumne defended and formalized in this dissertation is that continuous phonetic details of all stem vowels including the transparent vowels are relevant for the phonological alternation in suffixes. The dissertation proposes an integrated model that relates phonetic and phonological aspects of vowel harmony using the formal language of non linear dynamic. The advantage of this approach is in its potential to capture both qualitative as well as quantitative aspects of the same pattern in a unified way. Crucially a dynamic approach allows one to express both phonological and phonetic generalizations while maintaining the essential distinction between them. Hence the dynamic approach provides a feasible research strategy in the quest for understanding one of the continuing challenges in the study of speech: the relation between phonology, the mental or symbolic aspects of our speaking competence and phonetics, continuous physical manifestations of this competence. Applied to the particular case of transparency in Hungarian vowel harmony, the premise of interdependency between the phonetic properties of the stem vowels and the phonological patterns of suffix selection allows for an explanation of a broad range of data. Most importantly it provides a motivation for the cross linguistic generalizations related to transparent vowels in palatal vowel harmony systems. In addition the effects of tongue body height, lip rounding and surrounding vocalic context on the suffix selection in Hungarian receive a natural and lawful explanation. To summarize this dissertation presents novel experimental data from the production of transparent vowels in Hungarian. The proposed integrated model relating phonetics and phonology using the formal language of non linear dynamic achieves a unified explanation of both the phonetic and phonological generalizations observed in the data and the literature.
