Photometric Modeling for Computer Vision and Graphics: Proceedings of Workshop, June 22, 1999, Fort Collins, Colorado ,1999 Workshop on Photometric Modeling for Computer Vision and Graphics ,1999

Researchers from the fields of computer vision and computer graphics share a need for physically correct photometric models of illumination and reflectance The traditional role of photometry in computer graphics has been gradually expanding from image rendering to the acquisition of scene models typically associated with computer vision The eight papers from the June 1999 workshop discuss the significance and impact of photometric modeling approaches Among the topics are representing spectral functions by a composite model of smooth and spiky components Gaussian curvature from photometric scatter plots rendering of vegetation in the thermal infrared and color correction using explicit illumination models color and registered range No index Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR American Book Publishing Record R.R. Calibration and Orientation of Cameras in Computer Vision Armin Gruen,Thomas S. Huang,2013-03-09 This book was conceived during the Workshop Calibration and Orientation of Cameras in Computer Vision at the XVIIth Congress of the ISPRS International Society of Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing in July 1992 in Washington D C The goal of this workshop was to bring photogrammetry and computer vision experts together in order to exchange ideas concepts and approaches in camera calibration and orientation These topics have been addressed in photogrammetry research for a long time starting in the second half of the 19th century Over the years standard procedures have been developed and implemented in particular for metric cameras such that in the photogrammetric community such issues were considered as solved problems With the increased use of non metric cameras in photogrammetry they are revealingly called amateur cameras especially CCD cameras and the exciting possibilities of acquiring long image sequences quite effortlessly and processing image data automatically online and even in real time the need to take a new and fresh look at various calibration and orientation issues became obvious Here most activities emerged through the computer vision community which was somewhat unaware as to what had already been achieved in photogrammetry On the other hand photogrammetrists seemed to ignore the new and interesting studies in particular on the problems of orientation that were being performed by computer vision experts Proceedings of the Workshop in Visibility Values Douglas Fox,Ross J. Loomis,Thomas C.

Green,1979 Optics, Illumination, and Image Sensing for Machine Vision VI Donald J. Svetkoff,1992 Curves and Surfaces in Computer Vision and Graphics II Martine J. Silbermann,Hemant D. This textbook offers a statistical view on the geometry of multiple view analysis required for camera calibration and orientation and for geometric scene reconstruction based on geometric image features The authors have backgrounds in geodesy and also long experience with development and research in computer vision and this is the first book to present a joint approach from the converging fields of photogrammetry and computer vision Part I of the book provides an introduction to estimation theory covering aspects such as Bayesian estimation variance components and sequential estimation with a focus on the statistically sound diagnostics of estimation results essential in vision metrology Part II provides tools for 2D and 3D geometric reasoning using projective geometry This includes oriented projective geometry and tools for statistically optimal estimation and test of geometric entities and transformations and their relations tools that are useful also in the context of uncertain reasoning in point clouds Part III is devoted to modelling the geometry of single and multiple cameras addressing calibration and orientation including statistical evaluation and reconstruction of corresponding scene features and surfaces based on geometric image features The authors provide algorithms for various geometric computation problems in vision metrology together with mathematical justifications and statistical analysis thus enabling thorough evaluations The chapters are self contained with numerous figures and exercises and they are supported by an appendix that explains the basic mathematical notation and a detailed index The book can serve as the basis for undergraduate and graduate courses in photogrammetry computer vision and computer graphics It is also appropriate for researchers engineers and software developers in the photogrammetry and GIS industries particularly those engaged with statistically based geometric computer vision methods Optics, Illumination, and Image Sensing for Machine Vision III Donald J.
