Cynk, Destiny Can Wait: the Polish Air Force in the Second World War Polish Air Force Association, 1949 The Forgotten Few Adam Zamoyski, Gilbert S. Guinn Collection, 1996 Military Air Power in Europe Preparing for War Norman Ridley, 2023-01-24 The First World War had seen the mechanization of warfare Battle fronts had become immobilized in the grip of machine guns and heavy artillery leading to slaughter on an unprecedented scale The end of the war saw exhausted governments extricating themselves from the carnage but some leaders were concerned that sooner or later another major war would follow As France's Marshal Foch put it the Treaty of Versailles was only a twenty year truce The overriding concern was to find ways in future of avoiding the kind of static battle fronts that had consumed so many in such futile efforts Military aviation was seen as the one great innovation that had the potential to do this by revolutionizing warfare It would not only augment the effectiveness of ground forces in a tactical role but it also had the means of reaching out strategically beyond the battlefronts to strike at the enemy's trade supplies communications and industrial production All through the war military aviation had been firmly under the control of army commanders but there was soon a fierce debate over the way it should develop The development of an air doctrine within each of the major European powers was fraught with difficulty as the nascent air arms struggled with varying degrees of success to free themselves from army control to find a new independent identity This book examines the way in which these air arms competed for prominence within the military structures of six major European nations Germany Britain France Soviet Union Poland and Italy with different resources ambitions and philosophies in the years from the beginning of aviation right up to the start of the Second World War Vichy Air Force at War Jonathan Sutherland, Diane Canwell, 2011-01-01 At the beginning of World War II the French faced the German invasion with 4 360 modern combat aircraft and 790 new machines currently arriving from French and American factories each month When the phony war finally ended some 119 of 210 squadrons were ready for action on the north eastern front The others were reequipping or stationed in the French colonies Of the 119 squadrons France could bring into action only one fourth of the aircraft were battle ready With France overrun by June 1940 what remained of the French air force was either concentrated in the unoccupied zone or had been hastily redeployed to the colonies Nonetheless in retaliation for the British attack on the French fleet in Oran French bombers based in French Morocco carried out retaliatory air raids over Gibraltar The Armée de l'Air de Vichy was born and would fight to the best of its ability against the Free French's allies in theatres as distant as north west Africa Syria Lebanon Madagascar

and the Far East Not only would they take to the skies against the British and later the Americans they would also willingly take part in aerial duels against Free French pilots Only a handful of books have been written on French aircraft but never has there been a complete history of the operations of the Vichy Air Force and its fratricidal war This title literally spans the globe examining forgotten air combats It is also important to note that many of the Vichy pilots that survived the air combats later volunteered to join the Free French and would fight with great courage and distinction alongside the very pilots that they had been trying to kill

This book describes all major theatres of combat examines the aircraft flown and lengthy appendices cover operational units victory credits and the Aeronautique Navale Dust jacket Polish Air Force Fighter Aircraft, 1940-1942 Peter Sikora, 2024-01-18 Polish fighter pilots received their baptism of fire over their own country in September 1939 when they were overwhelmed by the aerial might of Germany and the Soviet Union Despite this they claimed over 120 enemy aircraft destroyed When the Polish Air Force was reborn in France the same men fought against the same enemy yet with more experience and with better understanding of their opponents tactics though as the author reveals the aircraft they flew were in most cases quite different Polish airmen also proved themselves during the Battle of Britain when 145 men from Poland the biggest non British contingent in Fighter Command fought for the survival one of the last bastions of democracy With an impressive tally of 126 enemy aircraft destroyed over Poland and a further fifty one in France these men including combat pilots flying instructors and test pilots had to be trained to serve under the command of the RAF They had to learn a new language that was crucial for them to be part of the Fighter Command organisation and when they finally did for every 100 men involved in fighting G ring s Luftwaffe in the air up to twenty of them were Polish During the Battle of Britain fighter pilots from Poland destroyed over 202 enemy aircraft with 303 Squadron becoming the most successful unit in the whole of Fighter Command Ten Polish fighter squadrons were eventually formed and went on to fight alongside their British Canadian Australian Belgian or Dutch brothers in arms in the RAF s offensive over northern Europe that began in earnest in 1941 In so doing the Polish fighter pilots achieved many successes against the enemy in the sky as well as on the ground though inevitably at a cost Polish Air Force Fighter Aircraft 1940 1942 tells the story that the men and machines of the Polish squadrons underwent from the Battle of France to the Dieppe Raid The latter was almost as disastrous in the air as it was on the ground though from the Polish perspective it confirmed the long developed skills of their pilots This book however is not just about the aircraft the Polish aircrew flew it also reveals how these men lived and fought in the early years of the Second World War
