History and Society During the Mamluk Period (1250-1517) Stephan Conermann, 2014 Once a person starts to study the 250 some years of the Mamluk Era in Egypt and Syria 1250-1517 one characteristic of that period stands out immediately the very unusual polarization of its society A predominantly Arabic population was dominated by a purely Turkish born elite of manumitted military slaves who sought to regenerate themselves continuously through a self imposed fiat The only person who could become a Mamluk was a Turk who had been born free outside the Islamic territories as a non Muslim then enslaved brought to Egypt as a slave converted to Islam freed and finally trained as a warrior Only those who met these prerequisites were members of the ruling stratum with all the concomitant political military and economic advantages On this historically unique model of a society Stephan Conermann has published a series of seminal articles In this edited volume the reader gets an excellent introduction to some of the central issues of the ongoing research on the Mamluk history and society Popular Science ,1989-08 Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world The core belief that Popular Science and our readers share The future is going to be better and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better
