Porphyrias Lover:

PORPHYRIA'S LOVER Robert Browning, 2017-08-07 Porphyria's Lover is Browning's first ever short dramatic monologue and also the first of his poems to examine abnormal psychology. In the poem, a man strangles his lover Porphyria with her hair. Porphyria's lover then talks of the corpse's blue eyes, golden hair, and describes the feeling of perfect happiness the murder gives him. Although he winds her hair around her throat 3 times to throttle her, the woman never cries out. The poem uses a somewhat unusual rhyme scheme A B A B B, the final repetition bringing each stanza to a heavy rest. Robert Browning (1812-1889) was an English poet and playwright whose mastery of dramatic verse and, in particular, the dramatic monologue made him one of the foremost Victorian poets. His poems are known for their irony, characterization, dark humor, social commentary, historical settings, and challenging vocabulary and syntax. The speakers in his poems are often musicians or painters whose work functions as a metaphor for poetry.

Allegories of One's Own Mind David G. Riede, 2005 Perhaps because major Victorians like Thomas Carlyle and Matthew Arnold proscribed Romantic melancholy as morbidly diseased and unsuitable for poetic expression critics have neglected or understated the central importance of melancholy in Victorian poetry Allegories of One's Own Mind re-directs our attention to a mode that Arnold was rejecting as morbid but also acknowledging when he disparaged the widely current idea that the highest ambition of poetry should be to present an allegory of the poet's own mind This book shows how early Victorian poets suffered from and railed against what they perceived to be a disabling post Wordsworthian melancholy we might refer to it as depression and yet benefited from this self-absorbed or love-obsessed state which ironically made them more productive David G. Riede argues that the dominant thematic and formal concerns of the age in fact are embodied in the ambivalence of Carlyle Arnold and others who pitted a Victorian ideology of duty rationality and high moral character against a still compelling Romantic cultivation of the deep self intuited as melancholy Such ambivalence in fact is in itself constitutive of melancholy long understood as the product of conscience raging against inchoate desire and it constitutes the mood of the age's most important poetry represented here in the major works of Alfred Tennyson Elizabeth Barrett Browning and even in the notoriously optimistic Robert Browning David G. Riede is professor of English at The Ohio State University

Porphyria's Lover (Complete Edition) Robert Browning, 2018-12-13 Robert Browning's Porphyria's Lover Complete Edition delves into the poignant complexities of love desire and the dark recesses of the human psyche Written in Browning's signature dramatic monologue style this poem captures the unsettling moment when a man reflects on his passionate encounter with Porphyria ultimately leading to a chilling and irreversible act of devotion Set against a tempestuous backdrop the lines oscillate between beauty and horror illustrating the tension between human emotion and moral boundaries The poem is an exemplary piece of Victorian literature exhibiting Browning's innovative approach to narrative and psychological depth while engaging with themes of power control and the duality of love in the context of societal norms of the time Robert Browning a prominent figure in the Victorian poetic movement was deeply influenced by the Romantic tradition as well as the socio-political upheavals of his era Coming from a background steeped in literature

Browning was known for his exploration of the darker aspects of love and relationships informed by his own tumultuous experiences and relationships most notably his marriage to fellow poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning This personal lens imbues Porphyria's Lover with an intense emotional resonance placing the reader in direct confrontation with the often uncomfortable intersection of passion and morality This complete edition of Porphyria's Lover is an indispensable read for anyone interested in the exploration of psychological themes in literature Browning's masterful use of dramatic monologue invites readers to engage deeply with the intricate layers of meaning making it relevant to contemporary discussions about love power and personal agency The poem's ability to invoke both empathy and discomfort makes it an essential addition to any literary collection

The Female Sublime from Milton to Swinburne Catherine Maxwell, 2001 This innovative study of vision gender and poetry traces Milton's mark on Shelley Tennyson Browning and Swinburne to show how the lyric male poet achieves vision at the cost of symbolic blindness and feminisation Drawing together a wide range of concerns including the use of myth the gender of the sublime the lyric fragment and the relation of pain to creativity this book is a major re evaluation of the male poet and the making of the English poetic tradition The female sublime from Milton to Swinburne examines the feminisation of the post Miltonic male poet not through cultural history but through a series of mythic or classical figures which include Philomela Orpheus and Sappho It recovers a disfiguring sublime imagined as an aggressive female force which feminises the male poet in an act that simultaneously deprives and energises him This book will be required reading for anyone with a serious interest in the English poetic tradition and Victorian poetry
