simultaneously as a good introduction to the historiography. If one feels in danger of sensory overload from this growing body of scholarship, Smith's piece is a useful preventive. Leigh E. Schmidt, author of Restless Souls: The Making of American Spirituality. This is a masterful overview. The history of the senses has been a frontier field for a while now. Mark Smith draws together what we know with an impressive sensory range and encourages further work. A really exciting survey. Peter N. Stearns, author of American Fear: The Causes and Consequences of High Anxiety. Who would ever have guessed that a book on the history of the senses—seeing, hearing, touching, tasting, and smelling—could be informative, thought-provoking, and at the same time most entertaining. Ranging in both time and locale, Mark Smith's Sensing the Past makes even the philosophy about the senses from ancient times to now both learned and exciting. This work will draw scholars into under-recognized subjects and lay readers into a world we simply but unwisely take for granted. Bertram Wyatt Brown, author of Southern Honor: Ethics and Behavior in the Old South. Mark M. Smith has a good record of communicating his research to a broad constituency within and beyond the academy. This will be required reading for anyone addressing sensory history. Penelope Gouk, author of Music, Science, and Natural Magic in Seventeenth-Century England. This is a fine cultural history of the body which takes Western and Eastern traditions and their texts quite seriously. Smith views a history of the senses not only from below but places it squarely in the historical imagination. It will be of interest to a wide range of readers. Sander L. Gilman, author of Difference and Pathology.

Picturing Fiction through Embodied Cognition Bien Klomberg, Theresa Schilhab, Michael Burke, 2022-02-15. This concise volume addresses the question of whether or not language and its structure in literary discourses determines individuals' mental vision, employing an innovative cross-disciplinary approach using readers' drawings of their mental imagery during reading. The book engages in critical dialogue with the perceived wisdom in stylistics rooted in Roger Fowler's seminal work on deixis and point of view to test whether or not this theory can fully account for what readers see in their mind's eye and how they see it. The work draws on findings from a study of English and Dutch across a range of literary texts in which participants read literary text fragments and were then asked to immediately draw representations of what they had seen envisioned. Building on the work of Fowler and more recent theoretical and empirical language-based studies in the area, Klomberg, Schilhab, and Burke argue that models from embodied cognitive science can help account for anomalies in evidence from readers' drawings, indicating new ways forward for interdisciplinary understandings of individual meaning construction in literary textual interfaces. This book will be of interest to students and scholars in stylistics, cognitive psychology, rhetoric, and philosophy, particularly those working in the field of embodied cognition. The Routledge Handbook of the Senses in the Ancient Near East Kiersten Neumann, Allison Thomason, 2021-09-30. This Handbook is a state-of-the-field volume containing diverse approaches to sensory experience, bringing to life in an innovative, remarkably vivid and visceral way the lives of past humans through contributions that cover the chronological and geographical expanse of the ancient Near East. It comprises thirty-two chapters written by leading international contributors that look at the ways in which humans through their senses experienced their lives and the world around them in the ancient Near East with coverage of Anatolia, Egypt, the Levant, Mesopotamia, Syria, and Persia from the Neolithic through the Roman period. It is organised into six parts related to sensory contexts: Practice, production and taskscape; Dress and the body; Ritualised practice and ceremonial spaces; Death and burial; Science, medicine and aesthetics; and Languages and semantic fields. In addition to exploring what makes each sensory context unique, this organisation facilitates cross-cultural and cross-chronological as well as cross-sensory and multisensory comparisons and discussions of sensory experiences in the ancient world. In so doing, the volume also enables considerations of senses beyond the five-sense model of Western philosophy: sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell, including proprioception and interoception, and the phenomena of synaesthesia and kinaesthesia.

The Routledge Handbook of the Senses in the Ancient Near East provides scholars and students within the field of ancient Near Eastern studies new perspectives on and conceptions of familiar spaces, places, and practices as well as material culture and texts. It also allows scholars and students from adjacent fields such as Classics and Biblical Studies to engage with this material and is a must-read for any scholar or student interested in or already engaged with the field of sensory studies in any period.

Dante and the Sense of Transgression William Franke, 2012-11-22

In Dante and the Sense of Transgression, William Franke combines literary critical analysis with philosophical and theological reflection to cast new light on Dante's poetic vision. Conversely, Dante's medieval masterpiece becomes our guide to rethinking some of the most pressing issues of contemporary theory. Beyond suggestive archetypes like Adam and Ulysses that hint at an obsession with transgression beneath Dante's overt suppression of it, there is another and a prior sense in which transgression emerges as Dante's essential and ultimate gesture. His work as a poet culminates in the Paradiso in a transcendence of language towards a purely ineffable mystical experience beyond verbal expression. Yet Dante conveys this experience nevertheless in and through language and specifically through the transgression of language violating its normally representational and referential functions. Paradiso's dramatic sky-scapes and unparalleled textual performances stage a deconstruction of the sign that is analyzed philosophically in the light of Blanchot, Levinas, Derrida, Barthes, and Bataille as transgressing and transfiguring the very sense of sense.
