with illustrations by Joseph H. Josephson & Peter H. Raven

Illustration by Joseph H. Josephson and Peter H. Raven

What is the invisible universe?
 The invisible universe is the part of the universe that we cannot see with our eyes. It is made up of dark matter and dark energy, which together make up about 95% of the universe. We know they are there because of their gravitational effects on the visible universe.

How do we know it is there?
 We know dark matter is there because of its gravitational effects on the visible universe. For example, the rotation curves of galaxies show that there is more mass than we can see. We know dark energy is there because of its effect on the expansion of the universe. The universe is expanding at an accelerating rate, which is what dark energy does.

Why is it called 'invisible'?
 It is called 'invisible' because we cannot see it with our eyes. It does not emit or absorb light, so it is invisible to our eyes. However, we can see its effects on the visible universe.

What is the evidence for dark matter?
 The evidence for dark matter comes from several sources. One is the rotation curves of galaxies, which show that there is more mass than we can see. Another is the gravitational lensing of light from distant galaxies, which shows that there is more mass than we can see. A third is the cosmic microwave background, which shows that there is more mass than we can see.

What is the evidence for dark energy?
 The evidence for dark energy comes from the observation that the universe is expanding at an accelerating rate. This is what dark energy does. It is a mysterious force that pushes the universe apart.

Looking At The Invisible Universe:

Looking at the Invisible Universe James Jespersen, Jane Fitz-Randolph, 1990 Discusses the aspects of our universe that we do not see and how they were discovered

The Invisible Universe Matthew Bothwell, 2021-11-11 From the discovery of entirely new kinds of galaxies to a window into cosmic prehistory Bothwell shows us the Universe as we've never seen it before literally Since the dawn of our species people all over the world have gazed in awe at the night sky But for all the beauty and wonder of the stars when we look with just our eyes we are seeing and appreciating only a tiny fraction of the Universe What does the cosmos have in store for us beyond the phenomena we can see from black holes to supernovas How different does the invisible Universe look from the home we thought we knew Dr Matt Bothwell takes us on a journey through the full spectrum of light and beyond revealing what we have learned about the mysteries of the Universe This book is a guide to the ninety nine per cent of cosmic reality we can't see the Universe that is hidden right in front of our eyes It is also the endpoint of a scientific detective story thousands of years in the telling It is a tour through our Invisible Universe

Sample Book Insights

- 1 Light is the tool through which we understand our cosmos Everything we know about our place in the Universe is based on light Light is a wonder that we are so familiar with in our everyday lives that we can easily overlook how strange it really is
- 2 The idea that light is produced by sources and then enters our eyes is a modern one and was not accepted by many philosophers throughout history The ancient Greek philosopher Democritus believed that all matter is made of tiny atoms that are constantly expelling ghostly images called eidola that fly through the air until they enter our eyes
- 3 The Scientific Revolution which took place hundreds of years later was made possible by the advances in science made by the Arab astronomer Hasan Ibn al Haytham His ideas about light which were new and revolutionary allowed us to see the Universe in a new way
- 4 The speed of light was measured first by astronomy where distances of millions of kilometres are common The first good estimate of the speed of light came from Galileo who saw the moons of Jupiter orbiting around their parent planet
