Love Letters for All Occasions Gary Hoskins, 2005-11 As the pages of the book of my life moves toward completion I have recorded and learned much about the process called living I have experienced the uncontrollable emotions of youth and its idealistic beliefs I have absorbed refined improved my knowledge of myself to the point that I know what I need what I am what I must become then there is you I am so comfortable in your presence because of the understanding that exists between us this powerful bond can not be broken This unison is not a chain but rather a bond of trust faith and commitment that is not stagnant It is a living and growing entity Whereas others are victims of what they feel I comprehend what I perceive and measure my response By repeating this process it has become who I am I understand you I respect you I care for you I think of you you are a part of me

Thomason, 2013-12-05 Mary Delany's phrase the matrimonial trap illuminates the apprehension with which genteel women of the eighteenth century viewed marriage These women were generally required to marry in order to secure their futures yet hindered from freely choosing a husband They faced marriage anxiously because they lacked the power either to avoid it or to define it for themselves For some women the written word became a means by which to exercise the power that they otherwise lacked Through their writing they made the inevitable acceptable while registering their dissatisfaction with their circumstances Rhetoric exercised both in public and in private allowed these women to define their identities as individuals and as wives to lay out and test the boundaries of more egalitarian spousal relationships and to criticize the traditional marriage system as their culture had defined it
