Phloem Transport Plant Biology Volume 1:

Transport in Plants I M.H. Zimmermann, J.A. Milburn, 2012-12-06 When WILHELM RUHLAND developed his plan for an Encyclopedia of Plant Physiology more than three decades ago biology could still be conveniently subdivided into classical areas Even within plant physiology subdivisions were not too difficult to make and general principles could be covered sufficiently in the two introductory volumes of the Encyclopedia on the physical and chemical basis of cell biology But the situation changed rapidly even during the 12 year publication period of the Encyclopedia 1955 1967 The new molecular direction of genetics and structural research on biopolymers had an integrating effect on all other biological fields including plant physiology and it became increasingly difficult to keep previously distinct areas separated RUHLAND'S overall plan included 18 volumes and about 22 000 pages It covered the entire field of plant physiology in most cases from the very beginning But as each volume appeared it was clear that its content would soon be outdated

references to experiments they cite original literature in figures and tables and at the end of each chapter list recent references that are relevant for a deeper analysis of the topic In addition an abundance of detailed and informative illustrations complement the text Bulletin of the Ecological Society of America Ecological Society of America,1993

Target Sites for Herbicide Action R. Kirkwood,2013-11-21 The development of chemicals to selectively control the growth of weeds has been a fascinating success story which has unfolded largely during the last four decades The dramatic growth of herbicide research that followed the wartime discoveries of the auxin type herbicides phenoxyalkanoic acids resulted in a whole range of compounds and mixtures which are used to eliminate broad or narrow leaved weeds from agricultural horticultural or forestry crops Today the safe use of this armament of compounds requires our understanding of their mode of action metabolism and environmental persistence The most recently developed herbicides are highly effective inhibitors of specific enzyme systems and formulation may be an important factor determining their efficient delivery at specific target sites In this book the major target sites of herbicide action are discussed in Chapters 1-5 with particular reference to photosynthesis amino acid lipid and carotenoid synthesis and other primary target sites The effects of synergists or antagonists as modifiers of herbicide action are described in Chapter 6 The importance of efficient target site delivery as a fundamental factor in herbicide activity and selectivity is generally recognized Delivery of a potentially lethal dose of active ingredient may depend on a whole range of factors including the efficiency of application retention absorption translocation immobilization and detoxification These aspects are considered in the remaining chapters with particular reference to the pathways and mechanisms involved in the uptake translocation and metabolism of soil and foliage applied herbicides
