Photographer In Old Peking:

A Photographer in Old Peking Hedda Morrison, 1985 Peking is one of the great cities of the world and one of the most fascinating. It has changed so radically in the past thirty years that the city's fabulous past is in danger of being lost to memory. This memoir of Peking from 1933 to 1946 compiled by one of the finest photographers who has ever worked in Asia is thus a significant document and will be of interest not only to longstanding China watchers but also to the many tourists who have been privileged to visit Peking in the decade since the city has again been opened to the West. The photographs provide a unique insight into life in Peking in the years preceeding the Communist revolution of 1949. The photographer Hedda Morrison left Nazi Germany in 1933 to manage a German owned photographic studio in Peking. Her sympathetic approach to her subject is manifested in the large number of photographs showing Chinese people from all walks of life at work and enjoying their leisure. Architectural studies provide valuable evidence of buildings and monuments that have since changed or disappeared and photographs taken beyond Peking and in the Western Hills convey the beauty of the north China landscape.

Chinese Whispers Nicholas Jose, 2012 This is a literary journey of an Australian writer's encounter with the culture and people of China particularly its young writers and artists and of the evolving influence of China on the writer's own work and life. Nicholas Jose is the author of four novels and two collections of short stories. He was Cultural Counsellor at the Australian Embassy Beijing between 1987 and 1990 and has taught Australian Studies in China.

Australian Women's Historical Photography Anne Maxwell, Lucy Van, 2024-07-02 Australian Women's Historical Photography Other Times Other Views examines the photographs produced by six talented women photographers against the historical backdrop of settler violence towards Indigenous Australians, the First Women's Movement, the Great War of 1914-1918, Australia's imperial occupation of New Guinea, the final years of Chinese Nationalist Party rule in China and debates about photography's status as an art form. Women's works from the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries have been downplayed or even ignored in existing accounts of Australia's cultural history and this study is aimed at rectifying this situation. At the same time the book demonstrates why amateur works are just as important as commercial works to our understanding of the past. Methodologically the book draws on scholarship from history, art history, anthropology, sociology, gender studies and cultural studies to create an interdisciplinary critical framework that will be of interest to a broad range of academic and archival researchers. It is also a framework that is critically sensible of its own groundings in the postcolonial and feminist present, thereby reflecting what is meaningful at any given historical moment. Finally, this book responds to the pronounced lack of visibility of Australian realist, documentary and commercial women's works. The few histories of Australian women's photography that exist pay more attention to modernist and contemporary works and when they do mention earlier women photographer's works they seldom go into much detail. They also ignore the works of the earliest Indigenous women photographers, women who traveled and made photographs abroad. By presenting a carefully contextualized and detailed study of works by six Australian women photographers who worked in the late colonial era and whose works in all sorts of small and surprising ways chronicled the impacts of some of the periods more disturbing as well as enlightened events we will not only add to knowledge of Australian women's photography we will also broaden and enrich the frames of women's photography and Australian history more generally

Visualising China, 1845-1965, 2012-11-09 How does China project its image in the world Why and how has the world come to form certain impressions of the Chinese and their way of life These are issues that preoccupy Chinese citizens in the globalizing 21st century as they travel overseas riding on the capacity of the country's newly acquired economic power In Visualizing China the authors join forces to launch a broader inquiry aimed at a synergistic understanding of the larger story of visibility in modern China The essays cluster around several nodal points including photographs advertising posters and movies spanning from the 1840s to the 1960s and devote special attention to modern Chinese practices in the visualization of things Chinese

Republican Beijing Madeleine Yue Dong, 2003-08-04 Old Beijing has become a subject of growing fascination in contemporary China since the 1980s While physical remnants from the past are being bulldozed every day to make space for glass walled skyscrapers and towering apartment buildings nostalgia for the old city is booming Madeleine Yue Dong offers the first comprehensive history of Republican Beijing examining how the capital acquired its identity as a consummately traditional Chinese city For residents of Beijing the heart of the city lay in the labor intensive activities of recycling a primary mode of material and cultural production and circulation that came to characterize Republican Beijing An omnipresent process of recycling and re use unified Beijing's fragmented and stratified markets into one circulation system These material practices evoked an air of nostalgia that permeated daily life Paradoxically the old Beijing toward which this nostalgia was directed was not the imperial capital of the past but the living Republican city Such nostalgia toward the present the author argues was not an empty sentiment but an essential characteristic of Chinese modernity

A Tender Voyage Ping-chen Hsiung, 2005 A Tender Voyage is the first full length study of the history of childhood and children's lives in late imperial China The author draws on an extraordinary range of sources to analyze both the normative concept of childhood literary and philosophical and the treatment and experience of children in China The study begins with the history of pediatrics and newborn care and their evolution over time The author moves on to the social environment of the child including models of upbringing and expected behavior and the treatment of different kinds of children including the rebellious and the gentle child She examines the role of the mother notably her close and complex relations with her sons and the broader emotional world of children their relationships with the adults around them and the destructive power of death The last section discusses concepts of childhood in China and the West Throughout the study keeps in view the issue of representation versus practice the role of memory and the importance of listening for what is not said

"A Truthful Impression of the Country" Nicholas J. Clifford, 2001 An examination of the writings of travelers to China in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries

Imperial China, 900-1800 F. W. Mote, 2003-11-15 In this history of China for the 900 year span of the late imperial period Mote highlights the personal characteristics of the rulers and dynasties and probes the cultural theme of Chinese adaptations to recurrent alien rule Generational events personalities and the spirit of the age combine to yield a comprehensive history of the civilization

Barbarian Lens Regine Thiriez, 1998-10-20 Part of the prestigious academic book series Documenting the Image this is a fascinating survey illustrated by extremely rare photographs of the burned architectural and landscape complex known as the Rape of the Summer Palace In 1860 Western armies brought ruin to the treasured seat of the Qing emperors near Beijing One hundred and fifty images have been collected to date as a support for an extensive study of the building of the palaces and their subsequent destruction This book is a rigorous analysis of the work and experiences of the European photographers both amateur and professional working in Beijing during this period and as such becomes an account of the development of photography itself Offering a fascinating glimpse into 19th Century China the book gives an historical overview of the political situation

The India-China Opium

Trade in the Nineteenth Century Hunt Janin, 1999-01-01 From 1823 to 1860 a fleet of small fast brigs and schooners carried chests of opium from India to China often facing the challenges of pirates and typhoons along the way This shadowy trade conducted by American British and Indian firms thrived despite its moral and legal consequences Drawing largely on primary sources the story of the opium trade comes through in the voices of those who saw it firsthand Appendices describe a favorite shipboard recipe two of the ships involved in the trade and their crews excerpts from accounts of the Opium War and language equivalents for proper and place names A bibliography is included and maps and photographs help illumine this important and unusual period of history

Natural History and Natural Resources through the Earth Sciences in Modern China after 1900 Markes Johnson, 2024-10-03 This book provides an overview of major changes in mainland China since the start of the modern era in 1900 as leaders grappled with how to harness natural resources requiring equal development in the pure and applied sciences based on fundamentals in geology On one hand China was put on the global stage with discovery of Peking Man fossils in the 1920s but has continued to win global acclaim for more recent discoveries of feathered dinosaurs and the earliest examples of metazoan life At the same time China struggled against outside exploitation to take full control of its own mineral and oil reserves which today are increasingly imported from abroad to maintain oil and steel production through the Belt and Road initiative The book concludes with a a discussion of what the Chinese Dream may mean in comparison to what many in the United States consider as a birthright with the American Dream
