Population Food And Rural Development International Studies In Demography:

Population, Food and Rural Development Ronald Demos Lee, Allen C. Kelley, 1992-02-01 Surveying the impact of population growth where it is believed to matter most the rural areas of developing countries this volume explicates its effects on food production It examines such factors as forecasts of global food output technological progress in agriculture choice of agricultural systems and population growth and access to land

Demography: Analysis and Synthesis, Four Volume Set Graziella Caselli, Jacques Vallin, Guillaume Wunsch, 2006-01-03 This four volume collection of over 140 original chapters covers virtually everything of interest to demographers sociologists and others Over 100 authors present population subjects in ways that provoke thinking and lead to the creation of new perspectives not just facts and equations to be memorized The articles follow a theory methods applications approach and so offer a kind of one stop shop that is well suited for students and professors who need non technical summaries such as political scientists public affairs specialists and others Unlike shorter handbooks Demography Analysis and Synthesis offers a long overdue thorough treatment of the field Choosing the analytical method that fits the data and the situation requires insights that the authors and editors of Demography Analysis and Synthesis have explored and developed This extended examination of demographic tools not only seeks to explain the analytical tools themselves but also the relationships between general population dynamics and their natural economic social political and cultural environments Limiting themselves to human populations only the authors and editors cover subjects that range from the core building blocks of population change fertility mortality and migration to the consequences of demographic changes in the biological and health fields population theories and doctrines observation systems and the teaching of demography The international perspectives brought to these subjects is vital for those who want an unbiased rounded overview of these complex multifaceted subjects Topics to be covered Population Dynamics and the Relationship Between Population Growth and Structure The Determinants of Fertility The Determinants of Mortality The Determinants of Migration Historical and Geographical Determinants of Population The Effects of Population on Health Economics Culture and the Environment Population Policies Data Collection Methods and Teaching about Population Studies All chapters share a common format Each chapter features several cross references to other chapters Tables charts and other non text features are widespread Each chapter contains at least 30 bibliographic citations

Food Security: Dynamics and Dimensions Mrityunjay Mohan Jha, 2003 Food insecurity is a persistent problem in most of the developing Nations of the world and food security is their priority Deals with this problem in a holistic perspective discussing the availability and accessibility to food Salient Features For holistic perspectives on food security in developing world situation assessment and policy options A conceptual framework for food insecurity study within the World System Concepts and key issues related to food insecurity Understanding availability and accessibility and discussions on poverty hunger population and ecology links Resource base technology agricultural productivity and diversification Role of various agencies in food security system including NGOs A review of population and food policies Relevance of food and developmental aid inevitability compulsions and options Effectiveness of regional co operation Securing food for all impediments and opportunities Population Policies and Programmes United Nations. National Income and Nature: Externalities, Growth and Steady State J.J. Krabbe,Wim Heijman,2012-12-06 Since the environmental revolution began in the late 1960s economists have done a lot of work in the field of economic theory building on the preservation of nature Meanwhile environmental economic literature has swelled to a large stream of articles in journals of different signature As a result a coherent economic view of the phenomenon of environmental degradation has emerged Several kinds of green public policies and their impacts on both nature and the performance of the economy have been analysed The feasibility of specific types of policy has also been discussed The aim of the book is to provide an insight into the ways economists analyse the problems of environmental pollution and the depletion of natural resource To this purpose a number of articles have been selected Some of them have a fundamental character others an applied nature and are foremost practically oriented The presentation of the collection emphasizes our belief that economists are able to deliver an essential contribution to the design of policies to protect nature It is clear that nature and environment may no longer be regarded as free gifts to society Rather they have to be seen as scarce resources and environmental disruption and resource depletion as allocation problems If a natural resource is scarce a price must be charged in accordance with the degree of scarcity since otherwise society will be confronted with misallocations In this connection there are two topics which are of particular interest to economists India John N. Mayor,2003 India long known for its huge population religious conflicts and its status as not quite best friend ally of the United States has moved from the backwaters of world attention to centre stage Afghanistan and Pakistan with whom India is in almost conflict are neighbours India has developed a nuclear capability which also has a way of grabbing attention This book discusses current issues and historical background and provides a thorough index important to a better understanding of this diverse country Crop Ecology R. S. Loomis,D. J.

Connor,1992-10-08 This book is centred on the production processes of crops and pastures photosynthesis and use of water and nutrients in fields The book is unique in its combination of great breadth and depth in its treatment of production processes and systems problems The approach is explanatory and integrative with a firm basis in environmental physics soils physiology and morphology in contrast to descriptive or reductionist approaches Systems concepts are introduced early and expanded as the book proceeds giving emphasis to quantitative approaches to management strategies and tactics employed by farmers and to environmental issues The systems approach is brought together in the final chapters where production and nutrient cycling are analyzed for example farms and problems in an uncertain future are considered The book is based on courses taught by the authors in Australia and the United States and is designed for use as a text for an introductory course in crop ecology advanced undergraduates and beginning post graduate level It is more than a text however Given the wide range of subjects the authors have integrated reference and background material to create a stand alone reference work useful to a wide audience of agriculturalists

Demographic Responses to Ecological Degradation and Food

Insecurity Markos Ezra,1997 Debilitating food shortages and tragic famines have been among the major problems facing many Sub Saharan countries in Africa since the early 1970s Ethiopia is one of the most severely affected countries in the region The country s drought prone areas on which this study focuses are suffering from severe ecological degradation and food insecurity The general trend in these areas represents the prevalence of disharmony between the natural resource base and the population to be sustained This research explores the relationship between growing ecological degradation and declining agricultural productivity on the one hand and increasing population density on the other It presents profound discussion on public awareness and perception about rural resources degradation and uncovers the social and demographic consequences of ecological degradation and food insecurity based on primary micro level data collected from selected drought prone communities in Northern Ethiopia Specifically it attempts to measure the demographic changes that have taken place in the period 1984 1994 and interpret them in the context of demographic transition theory It is argued that stress due to degradation of resources has compelled local people to realize the disadvantage of having a large number of children and apparently has led to fertility decline

Population and Poverty Naunihal Singh,2002

The Demographic Transition and Development in Africa Charles Teller,Assefa Hailemariam,2011-03-04 The heated Malthusian Bosrupian debates still rage over consequences of high population growth rapid urbanization dense rural populations and young age structures in the face of drought poverty food insecurity environmental degradation climate change instability and the global economic crisis However while facile generalizations about the lack of demographic change and lack of progress in meeting the MDGs in sub Saharan Africa are commonplace they are often misleading and belie the socio cultural change that is occurring among a vanguard of more educated youth Even within Ethiopia the second largest country at the Crossroads of Africa and the Middle East different narratives emerge from analysis of longitudinal micro level analysis as to how demographic change and responses are occurring some more rapidly than others The book compares Ethiopia with other Africa countries and demonstrates the uniqueness of an African type demographic transition a combination of poverty related negative factors unemployment disease food insecurity along with positive education health and higher age of marriage trends that are pushing this ruggedly rural and land locked population to accelerate the demographic transition and stay on track to meet most of the MDGs This book takes great care with the challenges of inadequate data and weak analytical capacity to research this incipient transition trying to unravel some of the complexities in this vulnerable Horn of Africa country A slowly declining population growth rates with rapidly declining child mortality very high chronic under nutrition already low urban fertility but still very high rural fertility and high population resource pressure along with rapidly growing small urban places

The Routledge Handbook of African Demography Clifford O. Odimegwu,Yemi Adewoyin,2022-02-07

Eaters Of The Dry Season David Rain, 2018-02-13 A remarkable blend of geography demography sociology development economics history cultural anthropology ecology politics sharia Muslim religious law and government policies This book dispels many misconceptions and is an education in itself Choice

Urbanization in History A. M. van der Woude, Akira Hayami, Jan De Vries, 1990 This book represents an important contribution to the history of urbanization The introduction offers a clear and instructive discussion of fundamental concepts processes and measurement problems summarizes latest research findings and goes on to detect new topics of particular current interest Four principal areas of contemporary research on urbanization are covered urban hierarchies and networks urban rural economic links and migration and demographic patterns The issues are discussed both in general terms and in the context of specific countries cities and historical periods New areas of analysis such as the study of migration flows by age sex or social group and the comparative east west approach of several of the chapters will serve to broaden the traditional scope of research and stimulate further work in the field

Micro-Approaches to Demographic Research John Caldwell, Allan Hill, Valerie J. Hull, 2023-10-02 Originally published in 1988 this collection of essays was the first attempt by population scientists to incorporate some of the methods and materials of anthropologists into their work The essays bridge the gap in the conceptualisation and organisation of field research by 2 sets of social scientists demographers and social anthropologists who share an interest in the explanation of particular patterns of population composition and change
