Bureau of the Census,1958 Atlas of Religion in China: Social and Geographical Contexts Fenggang Yang,2018-09-04 The speed and the scale with which traditional religions in China have been revived and new spiritual movements have emerged in recent decades make it difficult for scholars to stay up to date on the religious transformations within Chinese society This unique atlas presents a bird's eye view of the religious landscape in China today. In more than 150 full color maps and six different case studies it maps the officially registered venues of China's major religions: Buddhism, Christianity, Protestant, and Catholic, Daoism, and Islam at the national, provincial, and county levels. The atlas also outlines the contours of Confucianism, folk religion, and the Mao cult. Further, it describes the main organizations, beliefs, and rituals of China's main religions, as well as the social and demographic characteristics of their respective believers. Putting multiple religions side by side in their contexts, this atlas deploys the latest qualitative, quantitative, and spatial data acquired from censuses, surveys, and fieldwork to offer a definitive overview of religion in contemporary China. An essential resource for all scholars and students of religion and society in China.

Area Bibliography of China Richard T. Wang, 1997. A combination of scholarly, commercial, and popular interests has generated a large quantity of literature on every aspect of Chinese life during the past two decades. This bibliography reflects these combined interests; it is broken up into sections by subject headings and cross references refer the researcher to related topics.

China Bibliography Harriet T. Zurndorfer, 2021-12-06. This volume serves as a guide to all facets of China study, from advice on choosing an appropriate literary dictionary to finding the most recent yearbooks that offer statistical data about the contemporary economy. China Bibliography does not restrict itself to one particular discipline but considers the development of Chinese civilization as a whole, from its imperial beginnings to the present, and therefore demonstrates how one would find information about Chinese history, literature, religion, linguistics, collectanea, as well as present-day PRC economic and political policies. Because this book also explains how bibliographical data on China has accumulated over the last 300 years, including within China itself, it also may help the reader understand the significance of a particular type of reference work.

The Rise and Fall of the National Atlas in the Twentieth Century John Rennie Short, 2022-07-12. Between 1900 and 2000, more than seventy countries produced a national atlas, an official or quasi-official rendering of the nation-state in maps and accompanying text. This book considers the reasons behind and characteristics of this state-sponsored cartographic explosion. These national atlases mirror and embody some of the important themes of this turbulent century, including the complex connections between nation-state and territory, the rise of state-sponsored science, the growth of nation-states, colonialism, and postcolonialism, and the geography of biopolitics.

National Geographic Family Reference Atlas of the World National Geographic Society (U.S.), 2006. This family atlas contains many diverse world thematic topics with maps, graphs, charts, photographs, and text. All maps are completely updated to reflect the latest changes of our world.

The Population History of China (1368-1953) Shuji Cao, 2024-02-06. From 1368 to 1953, China's administrative divisions were mainly composed of counties, prefectures, and provinces. This book shows the population figures, density, and changes in the provincial population in China during this period, and population figures of each major city and town, and its proportion in terms of the provincial population during this period, the urbanization rate. Data in this book is drawn partly from historical sources and partly from statistical model-based calculations. The book also includes provincial
