Environment and Development Economics Scott Barrett, Karl-Göran Mäler, Eric S. Maskin, 2014-04-10 This book honours Partha Dasgupta and the field he helped establish environment and development economics It concerns the relationship between social systems to include families local communities national economies and the world as a whole and natural systems critical ecosystems forests water resources mineral deposits pollution fisheries and the Earth's climate Above all it concerns the poverty environment nexus the complex pathways by which people become or remain poor and resources become or remain overexploited With contributions by some of the world's leading economists including five recipients of the Nobel Prize in Economics in addition to scholars based in developing countries this volume offers a unique perspective on the environmental issues that matter most to developing countries

China's Environment and the Challenge of Sustainable Development Kristen A. Day, 2016-07-22 China has been experiencing extraordinary economic growth for over two decades Behind the remarkable statistics however it is facing a pressing issue balancing its economic development needs with protecting its environmental resources The environmental issue in China has a profound impact on the rest of the world as well in such concerns as global warming and ethical and legal considerations about environmental enforcement This book covers a broad range of topics from specific environmental assessments in key sectors i.e. desertification to the policy implications of China's entry into the WTO The contributors include scholars government officials business consultants environmental science and technology experts and others based in China and the United States Sharing perspectives that reflect their diverse backgrounds these experts offer valuable insights for handling the emerging opportunities and challenges of doing business in China

Refugees, Environment and Development Richard Black, 2018-10-08 Refugees Environment and Development is concerned with the complex interrelationships between forced migration natural resource management and sustainable development The book challenges the growing rhetoric that refugees cause environmental degradation and that environmental decline is promoting a new wave of environmental refugees Drawing on examples from Africa Asia and Latin America as well as detailed case studies of the Rwandan emergency of 1994-96 and lesser known refugee movements to Guinea and Senegal in West Africa the book argues against a neo Malthusian view of the relationship between population environment and migration The author explores alternative approaches to the dynamic processes of social and environmental change in refugee situations This is an ideal text for undergraduate and postgraduate students concerned with environment development and migration studies as well as policy makers and practitioners in the field
