Farewell to Visual Studies James Elkins, Gustav Frank, Sunil Manghani, 2015-10-28 Each of the five volumes in the Stone Art Theory Institutes series brings together a range of scholars who are not always directly familiar with one another's work. The outcome of each of these convergences is an extensive and unpredictable conversation on knotty and provocative issues about art. This fifth and final volume in the series focuses on the identity, nature and future of visual studies, discussing critical questions about its history, objects and methods. The contributors question the canon of literature of visual studies and the place of visual studies with relation to theories of vision, visuality, epistemology, politics and art history, giving voice to a variety of inter and transdisciplinary perspectives. Rather than dismissing visual studies as its provocative title might suggest, this volume aims to engage a critical discussion of the state of visual studies today, how it might move forward and what it might leave behind to evolve in productive ways. The contributors are Emmanuel Alloa, Nell Andrew, Linda Bezub, Rub Martin A. Berger, Hans Dam Christensen, Isabelle Decobecq, Bernhard J. Dotzler, Johanna Drucker, James Elkins, Michele Emmer, Yolaine Escande, Gustav Frank, Theodore Gracyk, Asbjørn Grønstad, Stephan Günzel, Charles W. Haxthausen, Miguel Hernández Navarro, Tom Holert, K. van Kesteren, Charlotte Klonk, Tirza True Latimer, Mark Linder, Sunil Manghani, Anna Notaro, Julia Orell, Mark Reinhardt, Vanessa R. Schwartz, Bernd Stiegler, Yvind Vignès, Sjoukje van der Meulen, Terri Weissman, Lisa Zaher and Marta Zarzycka. Embodiment and Education Marjorie O'Loughlin, 2006-03-10 This book brings together some of the most important philosophical works on the body. These are then subjected to a critical analysis of what bodies do and have done to them in contemporary social life and particularly in education. The author acknowledges the importance of discursive bodies while focusing attention on the active experiencing body and its anchoring in the creaturely. Thinking in these terms, the author argues, can better situate human beings in their environment, thus emphasizing a kind of ecological notion of subjectivity in which place-based existence is understood anew. Shakespeare, Film Studies, and the Visual Cultures of Modernity A. Guneratne, 2016-04-30 This book is the first in-depth cultural history of cinema's polyvalent and often contradictory appropriations of Shakespearean drama and performance traditions. The author argues that these adaptations have helped shape multiple aspects of film from cinematic style to genre and narrative construction. Visual Literacy James Elkins, 2009-09-11 What does it mean to be visually literate? Does it mean different things in the arts and the sciences? In the developed West or in developing nations? This groundbreaking collection explores what impact the new concept of visual literacy has on art history. The Grove Encyclopedia of American Art Joan M. Marter, 2011 Arranged in alphabetical order, these 5 volumes encompass the history of the cultural development of America with over 2300 entries. Picture World Rachel Teukolsky, 2020-08-16 The modern media world came into being in the nineteenth century when machines were harnessed to produce texts and images in unprecedented numbers. In the visual realm, new industrial techniques generated a deluge of affordable pictorial items: mass-printed photographs, posters, cartoons and illustrations. These alluring objects of the Victorian parlor were miniaturized spectacles that served as portals onto phantasmagoric versions of the world. Although new kinds of pictures transformed everyday life, these ephemeral items have received remarkably little scholarly attention. Picture World shines a welcome new light onto these critically neglected yet fascinating visual objects. They serve as entryways into the nineteenth century's key aesthetic concepts. Each chapter pairs a new type of picture with a foundational keyword in Victorian aesthetics, a familiar term reconceived through the lens of new media. Character appears differently when considered with caricature in the new comics and cartoons appearing in the mass press in the 1830s; likewise, the book approaches realism through pictorial journalism, illustration via illustrated Bibles, sensation through carte de visite portrait photographs, the picturesque by way of stereoscopic views, and decadence through advertising posters. Picture World studies the aesthetic effects of the nineteenth century's media revolution; it uses the relics of a previous era's cultural life to interrogate the Victorian world's most deeply held values, arriving at insights still relevant in our own media age.

Handbook of Research in the Social Foundations of Education Steven Tozer, Bernardo P. Gallegos, Annette Henry, Mary Bushnell Greiner, Paula Groves Price, 2011-07-05. This groundbreaking volume helps readers understand the history, evolution, and significance of this wide-ranging, often misunderstood and increasingly important field of study.

Visual Culture in Contemporary China Xiaobing Tang, 2015-01-08. Explores China's rich visual culture from the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949 to the present day.

Schools and Screens Victoria Cain, 2024-02-06. Why screens in schools, from film screenings to instructional television to personal computers, did not bring about the educational revolution promised by reformers. Long before Chromebook giveaways and remote learning, screen media technologies were enthusiastically promoted by American education reformers. Again and again, as schools deployed film screenings, television programs, and computer games, screen-based learning was touted as a cure for all educational ills. But the transformation promised by advocates for screens in schools never happened. In this book, Victoria Cain chronicles important episodes in the history of educational technology as reformers, technocrats, public television producers, and computer scientists tried to harness the power of screen-based media to shape successive generations of students. Cain describes how, beginning in the 1930s, champions of educational technology saw screens in schools as essential tools for training citizens and presented films to that end. Among the films screened for educational purposes was the notoriously racist Birth of a Nation. In the 1950s and 1960s, both technocrats and leftist educators turned to screens to prepare young Americans for Cold War citizenship, and from the 1970s through the 1990s, as commercial television and personal computers arrived in classrooms, screens in schools represented an increasingly privatized vision of schooling and civic engagement. Cain argues that the story of screens in schools is not simply about efforts to develop the right technological tools; rather, it reflects ongoing tensions over citizenship, racial politics, private funding, and distrust of teachers. Ultimately, she shows that the technologies that reformers had envisioned as improving education and training students in civic participation, in fact, deepened educational inequities.

Seeing South Asia Dev Nath Pathak, Biswajit Das, Ratan Kumar Roy, 2022-04-11 This book critically examines the cultural politics of visuals in South Asia. It makes a key contribution to the study of visuals in the social sciences in South Asia by studying the interplay of the seen and unseen and the visual and nonvisual. The volume explores interrelated themes including the vernacular visual and visuality, ways of seeing in South Asia and the methodology of hermeneutic sensorium, anxiety and politics of the visuals across the region and the trajectory of visual anthropology, significance of visual symbols and representations in contemporary performances and folk art, visual landscapes of loss and recovery and representation of refugees, visual public in South Asia and making of visuals for contemporary consumptions. The chapters unravel the concepts of visual visibility, visuality while attending to determinant meta ideas such as memory and modernity, trajectories of tradition, fluidity and hybridity and visual performative politics. Based on interdisciplinary resources, the chapters in this volume present a wide array of empirical findings across India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Nepal and Bangladesh along with analytical readings of the visual culture of the subcontinent across borders. The book will be useful to scholars and researchers of visual and cultural studies, social and cultural anthropology, sociology, political studies, media and communications studies, performance studies, art history, television and film studies, photography studies and South Asian studies. It will also interest practitioners including artists, visual artists, photographers, filmmakers and media critics.
