A Dictionary of the Pali Language Robert Caesar Childers,1872 Writing in the Devil's Tongue Xiaoye You,2010-01-29 Winner CCCC Outstanding Book Award Until recently American composition scholars have studied writing instruction mainly within the borders of their own nation rarely considering English composition in the global context in which writing in English is increasingly taught Writing in the Devil s Tongue challenges this anachronistic approach by examining the history of English composition instruction in an East Asian country Author Xiaoye You offers scholars a chance to observe how a nation changed from monolingual writing practices to bilingual writing instruction in a school setting You makes extensive use of archival sources to help trace bilingual writing instruction in China back to 1862 when English was first taught in government schools Treating the Chinese pursuit of modernity as the overarching theme he explores how the entry of Anglo American rhetoric and composition challenged and altered the traditional monolithic practice of teaching Chinese writing in the Confucian spirit The author focuses on four aspects of this history the Chinese negotiation with Anglo American rhetoric their search for innovative approaches to instruction students situated use of English writing and local scholarship in English composition Unlike previous composition histories which have tended to focus on institutional disciplinary and pedagogical issues Writing in the Devil s Tongue brings students back to center stage by featuring several passages written by them in each chapter These passages not only showcase rhetorical and linguistic features of their writings but also serve as representative anecdotes that reveal the complex ways in which students responding to their situations performed multivalent intercultural discourses In addition You moves out of the classroom and into the historical cultural and political contexts that shaped both Chinese writing and composing practices and the pedagogies that were adopted to teach English to Chinese in China Teachers students and scholars reading this book will learn a great deal about the political and cultural impact that teaching English composition has had in China and about the ways in which Chinese writing and composition continues to be shaped by rich and diverse cultural traditions and political discourses In showcasing the Chinese struggle with teaching and practicing bilingual composition Writing in the Devil s Tongue alerts American writing scholars and teachers to an outdated English monolingual mentality and urges them to modify their rhetorical assumptions pedagogical approaches and writing practices in the age of globalization

Adaptive Water Management Farideh Delavari Edalat,M. Reza Abdi,2017-09-05 This book explores a new framework of Adaptive Water Management AWM for evaluating existing approaches in urban water management It highlights the need to adopt multidisciplinary strategies in water management while providing an in depth understanding of institutional interactions amongst different water related sectors The key characteristics of AWM i e polycentric governance organisational flexibility and public participation are investigated and described through a critical review of the relevant literature The book presents an empirical case study undertaken in a selected developing country city to investigate the potential gaps between the current water management approaches and possible implementation of AWM Feasibility of AWM operations is examined in an environment surrounded by established water management structure with centralised governance and an institutional process based on technical flexibility The key elements of AWM performance are re structured and transformed into decision support systems Multi criteria decision models are developed to facilitate quantification and visualization of the elements derived from the case study which is involved with water companies and water consumers The book describes how the concept of AWM along with structuring suitable decision support systems can be developed and applied to developing country cities The book highlights the barriers for applying the AWM strategies that include established centralised decision making bureaucratic interactions with external organisations lack of organisational flexibility within the institutions and lack of recognition of public role in water management The findings outline that despite the lack of adaptability in the current water management in the case study as an example of developing countries there are positive attitudes among water professionals and the public towards adaptability through public institutional participation
