Moving On In Whole Language:

Street Smarts and Critical Theory Thomas McLaughlin, 1996-11-01 Everybody's got a theory or do they Thomas McLaughlin argues that critical theory raising serious sustained questions about cultural practice and ideology is practiced not only by an academic elite but also by savvy viewers of sitcoms and TV news by Elvis fans and Trekkies by labor organizers and school teachers by the average person in the street Like academic theorists who are trained in a tradition of philosophical and political skepticism that challenges all orthodoxies the vernacular theorists McLaughlin identifies display a lively and healthy alertness to contradiction and propaganda They are not passive victims of ideology but active questioners of the belief systems that have power over their lives Their theoretical work arises from the circumstances they confront on the job in the family in popular culture And their questioning of established institutions McLaughlin contends is essential and healthy for it energizes other theorists who clarify the purpose and strategies of institutions and justify the existence of cultural practices Street Smarts and Critical Theory leads us through eye opening explorations of social activism in the Southern Christian anti pornography movement fan critiques in the zine scene New Age narratives of healing and transformation the methodical manipulations of the advertising profession and vernacular theory in the whole language movement Emphasizing that theory is itself a pervasive cultural practice McLaughlin calls on academic institutions to recognize and develop the theoretical strategies that students bring into the classroom This book demystifies the idea of theory taking it out of the hands of a priestly caste and showing it as the democratic endowment of the people Daniel T O'Hara Temple University author of Radical Parody American Culture and Critical Agency after Foucault and Lionel Trilling The Work of Liberation McLaughlin takes seriously the critical and theoretical activity of everyday people and does so in a way that will empower these very populations to take seriously their own activities as theorists A manifesto that is sure to be heard by the younger generation of thinkers in American cultural studies Henry Jenkins MIT author of Textual Poachers Television Fans and Participatory Culture Moving on in Whole Language Pearson Education Canada, 1992-01-01

Whole Language Lou Willett Stanek, 1993 Grade level 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 e i p t Inside Stories Kathleen B. deMarrais, 2012-12-06 Although articles reporting research studies are helpful in acquainting students with methodological approaches they often make the process look so straightforward clean and effortless It is rare to find an article that tells the real story behind the finished product By having real researchers tell their own stories of mucking around with methodological and ethical issues in qualitative research we get a more realistic human story of the process This is a collection of such stories Authors were asked to describe their own experiences with methodological and ethical struggles as they engaged in their work Each of the essays offers insight into the research approach used as well as particular issues which became apparent during the research process Key issues raised by the authors include early learnings gaining entry overlapping conflicting roles and the boundaries of these roles differential power relationships who tells the story and whose story is told ethical concerns related to confidentiality and the influence of a researcher's particular philosophy or theoretical framework on his or her research Throughout the book we see scholars whose personal stories or autobiographies intersect closely with their research projects deMarrais introduces a unique framework to help students gain an overview of qualitative research methods and the underpinnings and processes in these approaches This framework is centered on the ways we understand phenomena using qualitative research approaches that engage archival knowledge narrative knowledge or observational knowledge

Understanding and Teaching Reading Emerald Dechant, 2013-09-13 In the words of Aldous Huxley Every man who knows how to read has it in his power to magnify himself to multiply the ways in which he exists to make his life full significant and interesting Few people question the value of reading in fact most extol its virtues As our culture becomes more complex reading plays an increasingly greater role in satisfying personal needs and in promoting social awareness and growth In the last 20 years the teaching of this invaluable skill has focused so intensely on comprehension and prediction from context that it has lost sight of the significance of automaticity and fluency in the word identification process Reading is a synthesis of word recognition and comprehension thus this text is about these basic processes and their integration A common plea from teachers today is that research and psychology be translated into teaching behavior Therefore the aim of this book is twofold one to identify report organize and discuss those bits of data research and theory that are most relevant to the teacher's understanding of the reading process and two to help educators to interpret and apply theory and research data to everyday classroom teaching as well as to the problems encountered frequently in developmental and remedial teaching

Between Worlds Linda Chisholm, 2017-11-30 How the story of how missionary schools adopted the Bantu education reforms gives insight into the ongoing legacy of the apartheid in the South African educational system The transition from apartheid to the post apartheid era has highlighted questions about the past and the persistence of its influence in present day South Africa This is particularly so in education where the past continues to play a decisive role in relation to inequality

Between Worlds German Missionaries and the Transition from Mission to Bantu Education in South Africa scrutinises the experience of a hitherto unexplored German mission society probing the complexities and paradoxes of social change in education It raises challenging questions about the nature of mission education legacies Linda Chisholm shows that the transition from mission to Bantu Education was far from seamless Instead past and present interpenetrated one another with resistance and compliance cohabiting in a complex new social order At the same time as missionaries complied with the new Bantu Education dictates they sought to secure a role for themselves in the face of demands of local communities for secular state controlled education When the latter was implemented in a perverted form from the mid 1950s one of its tools was textbooks in local languages developed by mission societies as part of a transnational project with African participation Introduced under the guise of expunging European control Bantu Education merely served to reinforce such control The response of local communities was an attempt to domesticate and master the foreign body of the mission so as to create access to a larger world This book focuses on the ensuing struggle fought on many fronts including medium of instruction and textbook content with concomitant sub texts relating to gender roles and sexuality South Africa s educational history is to this day informed by networks of people and ideas crossing geographic and racial boundaries The colonial legacy has inevitably involved cultural mixing and hybridisation with paradoxically parallel pleas for purity Chisholm explores how these ideas found expression in colliding and coalescing worlds one African the other European caught between mission and apartheid education Transforming Schools D. G. Mulcahy,2013-05-01 President Obama has on a number of occasions rejected policies that have been tried and do not work Legislation such as No Child Left Behind and policies such as Race to the Top are neither effective nor based on sound research Educational policy making is now more than ever the preserve of politicians advocacy foundations and lobbyists parading as corporate leaders Teachers have little voice their role is merely to be held responsible for policies foisted upon them In Transforming Schools Alternative Perspectives on School Reform our aim is to provide alternative perspectives to the dead end educational policies by which our governments have become consumed We turn the spotlight on a select range of topics that have become the focus of concern and we consider the implications for school improvement These topics include school reform in general the achievement gap literacy standardized assessment social justice and ecojustice aesthetic and moral education and general education Whole Language Linda K.
