Part One the authors examine the destructiveness and cost of modern nuclear arsenals and offer both normative and systemic explanations Globalization and the Changing Role of the State Rumki Basu, 2008 Contributed seminar papers presented at national seminar held on 4th 6th Dec 2007 Dept of Political Science Jamia Millia Islamia India-Pakistan Nuclear Diplomacy Mario E. Carranza, 2016-07-15 The conventional wisdom based on realist premises is that nuclear weapons are an irreversible reality in South Asia and that efforts to denuclearize the subcontinent are a futile endeavor As a result real nuclear arms control in South Asia remains elusive and scholars continue focusing their efforts on how to achieve crisis stability and deterrence stability in future Indo Pakistani confrontations However they tend to analyze India and Pakistan's nuclear diplomacy as if the nuclear competition occurred in complete isolation from the changing dynamics of the international social environment Using a constructivist model this study brings nuclear arms control and disarmament back into the debates on the future of Indo Pakistani relations Constructivism recognizes the independent impact of international norms such as the Nuclear Non Proliferation Norm NNPN on India and Pakistan's nuclear behavior Even though the NNPN does not legally bind them it is reinforced at the global level and may lead the South Asian rivals to move in the direction of nuclear arms control and disarmament thus reducing the costs dangers and risks of an eternal strategic rivalry After examining the main tenets of constructivism in international relations the work delves into the proliferation debate discussing nuclear reversal and U S policy toward the subcontinent since the G W Bush administration It looks at the prospects for nuclear arms control and disarmament in South Asia after the U S India nuclear deal of 2008 and the nuclear abolitionist wave during the first Obama administration It concludes with the contribution of social constructivism to understanding how changes in the India Pakistan nuclear status quo can happen Beyond 1995 R.E. Pendley, J.F. Pilat, 2012-12-06 There is almost universal support for the view that the world would be an even more dangerous place if there were to be more nuclear weapon states There would be more fingers on more triggers and probably a greater risk that a trigger might be pulled with incalculable consequences It is easy to see therefore that there is a collective interest in avoiding the spread of nuclear weapons to further countries Nations do not however normally undertake or refrain from actions because of such a collective interest they do so because of their individual interests This is especially true in the field of national security A nation perceiving that it has a real interest in developing nuclear weapons is not very likely to refrain from doing so merely because it is told such development would be bad for the world community If the global interest in avoiding the spread of nuclear weapons to more countries is to succeed conditions that make it in the interest of each individual nation to renounce nuclear weapons need to be created or maintained Fortunately conditions have prevailed in which the vast majority of nations have seen an advantage in making legally binding nonproliferation commitments An important rationale for many of these countries has been that these commitments would facilitate the transfer of desired civil nuclear technology Alternative Long-range Energy Strategies United States.
