Digital Image Processing in Medicine K. H. Höhne,2013-03-07 In diagnostic medicine a large part of information about the patient is drawn from data which more or less are represented in an opti calor pictorial form There is a very wide range of such data as e g the patients appearance the various kinds of radiological images or cytological imagery In conventional diagnostics the data as it comes from the acquisition device is perceived by the physician and is interpreted with the help of a large amount of a priori knowledge to give a diagnostic finding During the last 15 years a steadily rising number of attempts have been made to support these processes by the application of com puters The attempts mainly concentrate on three objectives 1 Support of the perception process by the production of better or new types of images e g by Computer tomography or Computer angio graphy image processing 2 Automation of the interpretation process e g for bloodcell dif ferentiation pattern recognition 3 Management of the steeply rising amount of medical image data in the hospital image data bases Although the early applications of digital methods aimed at the second objective in the last years much more success has been a achieved in the support of the perception process by methods of image process ing The reason for this is obvious in the case of automatic interpre tation the a priori knowledge of the physician has to be formalized
