From the back cover Environment is now at the top of the public agenda This publication reports on two workshops held in early 1988 to discuss aspects of environmental issues The workshop members were drawn from number of professions and came with wide experience They were much concerned about environmental issues and determined to recommend action on them Accordingly they refused to be constrained by workshop titles or fixed agendas and ranged widely over a number of important questions These included the basic nature of the environmental issue the apparent failure over the past couple of decades of our decision making processes and institutions in attacking the causes why have we not done better and the reasons for that and what now must be done They ended with a series of recommendations which set out the results of their best thinking at that time

Canadian Energy Policy and the Struggle for Sustainable Development G. Bruce

Deon, 2005-01-01 In recent years energy policy has been increasingly linked to concepts of sustainable development In this timely collection editor G Bruce Doern presents an overview of Canadian energy policy gathering together the top Canadian scholars in the field in an examination of the twenty year period broadly benchmarked by energy liberalization and free trade in the mid 1980s and by Canada's ratification of the Kyoto Protocol in 2002 The contributors examine issues including electricity restructuring in the wake of the August 2003 blackout the implications of the Bush Administration's energy policies energy security northern pipelines and Aboriginal energy issues provincial changes in energy policy and overall federal provincial changes in regulatory governance They also demonstrate that since per capita energy usage has actually increased in the past several years sustainable development remains very much a struggle rather than an achievement When the Kyoto Protocol and its requirements for reductions in greenhouse gas emissions are factored in the Canadian record is especially dubious in basic energy terms Canadian Energy Policy and the Struggle for Sustainable Development is key to understanding many of the issues in Canada's endeavour to live up to its energy related environmental responsibilities

Kalin,Canada.

Environment Canada, Canada. Atomic Energy Control Board, Canada. Energy, Mines and Resources Canada, 1988 Inactive or abandoned uranium mill tailings in the uranium producing provinces of Ontario and Saskatchewan have been studied to obtain information on some of the parameters that will enable predictions to be made about possible pathways for long lived radionuclides to enter the surrounding environment Populations of the major indigenous plant species that colonize these waste sites were identified Physical and chemical data describing the surface of the uranium tailings and the associated surface water and biological data on the indigenous vegetation growing on the tailings were collected and are summarized A comparison of physical factors and chemical factors of the tailings surface from three sites Bancroft Elliot Lake and Uranium City with soils from nearby control areas is presented Similar physical and chemical characteristics were determined for surface waters and the results from these analyses are compared with those derived from leachate solutions from the root zone depths of tailings Vegetation are analyzed for radionuclide concentrations and above ground biomass and associated litter accumulations were also analyzed The tailings characteristics reported are from four abandoned unreclaimed uranium tailings sites six inactive revegetated sites and two abandoned sites All of the investigated sites are one to two decades old

Proceedings of the Royal Society of Canada Royal Society of Canada,1925 Power Switch G. Bruce Doern,Monica Gattinger,2003-01-01 In the energy sector of Canadian economic and political life power has a double meaning It is quintessentially about the generation of power and physical energy However it is also about political power the energy of the economy and thus the overall governance of Canada Power Switch offers a critical examination of the changing nature of energy regulatory governance with a particular focus on Canada in the larger contexts of the George W Bush administration s aggressive energy policies and within North American energy markets Focusing on the key institutions and complex regimes of regulation Bruce Doern and Monica Gattinger look at specific regulatory bodies such as the National Energy Board the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board and the Ontario Energy Board They also examine the complex systems of rule making that develop as traditional energy regulation interacts and often collides with environmental and climate change regulation such as the Kyoto Protocol on reducing greenhouse gas emissions Power Switch is one of the first accounts in many years of Canada s overall energy regulatory system
