Autobiographical Notes Frank Robert Vivello, 2017-10-17 This may be the oddest book of its kind that you'll ever read. It's a memoir of a sort, an autobiography in much the same way that crumbs dropped on the forest floor are a pathway to the old hag's hut where Hansel and Gretel are held. If you collect the crumbs as you walk, you'll have a sum greater than its parts at the end of your trek, a surprisingly coherent account of a unique personality: an incorrigible individualist, fiercely independent, defiant of tradition, who is sometimes profound and insightful and sometimes trite and narrow-minded, highly original but not necessarily admirable. Most important, the author is someone who thinks, which challenges readers to think. And whether or not you're sympathetic to his way of thinking, one thing is clear: he is above all else rational.

American Jewish Fiction Josh Lambert, 2010-01-01 This new volume in the JPS Guides series is a fiction reader's dream, a guide to 125 remarkable works of fiction. The selection includes a wide range of classic American Jewish novels and story collections from 1867 to the present, selected by the author in consultation with a panel of literary scholars and book industry professionals: Roth, Mailer, Kellerman, Chabon, Ozick, Heller, and dozens of other celebrated writers are here with their most notable works. Each entry includes a book summary with historical context and background on the author. Suggestions for further reading point to other books that match readers' interests and favorite writers. And the introduction is a fascinating exploration of the history of and important themes in American Jewish Fiction, illustrating how Jewish writing in the U.S. has been in constant dialogue with popular entertainment and intellectual life. Included in this guide are lists of book award winners, recommended anthologies, title, author, and subject indexes, and more.

Writing Home Leslie A. Fiedler, 2024-12-01 The letters in Writing Home offer a glimpse into a crucially formative period in the life of Leslie A. Fiedler, one of the greatest literary critics and American public intellectuals of the twentieth century. Written to his wife and two sons between May 1944 and December 1945 while he was serving as a cryptologist and translator for the Office of Naval Intelligence, they contain firsthand accounts of his experiences in various locations in the Pacific Theater, including Hawaii, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, Guam, and China. Constrained by Navy censors from writing directly about his work as an intelligence officer, he writes instead on a variety of themes, events, places, and war situations, including the ethical contradictions between a war fought for and in the name of freedom on the one hand and the oppression of indigenous Hawaiians and prisoners of war on the other. He also questions the mainstream European-centered view of the war and provides new insights into the role of Jewish servicemen in World War II. Finally, the letters document the beginning of the formation of American intellectual life in the years preceding the Cold War, forcing us to rethink certain premises of American exceptionalism in the second half of the twentieth century. Taken together, they offer a unique and fascinating immersion into history through the eyes of one of the makers of post-World War II American literary culture.

Borrowed Voices Jennifer Glaser, 2016-03-10 In the decades following World War II many American Jews sought to downplay their difference as a means of assimilating into Middle America Yet a significant minority including many prominent Jewish writers and intellectuals clung to their ethnic difference using it to register dissent with the status quo and act as spokespeople for non white America In this provocative book Jennifer Glaser examines how racial ventriloquism became a hallmark of Jewish American fiction as Jewish writers asserted that their own ethnicity enabled them to speak for other minorities Rather than simply condemning this racial ventriloquism as a form of cultural appropriation or commending it as an act of empathic imagination Borrowed Voices offers a nuanced analysis of the technique judiciously assessing both its limitations and its potential benefits Glaser considers how the practice of racial ventriloquism has changed over time examining the books of many well known writers including Bernard Malamud Cynthia Ozick Philip Roth Michael Chabon Saul Bellow and many others Bringing Jewish studies into conversation with critical race theory Glaser also opens up a dialogue between Jewish American literature and other forms of media including films magazines and graphic novels Moreover she demonstrates how Jewish American fiction can help us understand the larger anxieties about ethnic identity authenticity and authorial voice that emerged in the wake of the civil rights movement
