He is sent to a private religious college because his mother feels it is safer, but he yearns for State college where he might be able to expand his knowledge of the real world. Claude doesn't feel comfortable in any situation and almost every step he takes is a wrong one. While he is struggling to find his way in a questionable marriage, the U.S. decides to enter World War I and Claude enlists. He is commissioned as a lieutenant and he and his outfit are deployed to France in the waning months of the war. There, Claude finds the purpose he has been missing his whole life. One of Ours is Cather's first novel following the completion of her Prairie Trilogy, which she finished before the U.S. had entered the war. Cather's cousin Grosvenor had grown up on the farm next to hers and had many of the traits she gave to Claude and like her protagonist went with the Army to France towards the end of the war. After the war was over, she felt compelled to write something different than the novels she had become known for, saying that this one stood between her and anything else. Although today it is not considered her best work, the novel won the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction in 1923.
