Race Class And Culture:

Race, Class, and Culture Robert Charles Smith, Richard Seltzer (Ph. D.), 1992-01-01 Race is arguably the most profound and enduring cleavage in American society and politics This book examines the sources and dynamics of the race cleavage in American society through a detailed analysis of intergroup and intragroup differences at the level of mass opinion The ethclass theory which examines the intersection of ethnicity and class is used to analyze interracial differences in mass attitudes This analysis yields three clusters of opinion that distinguish African Americans from whites religiosity interpersonal alienation and political liberalism The authors then examine the intragroup sources of these opinion differences among blacks in terms of class gender age region and religion While the authors demonstrate an embryonic trend of more black middle class opinion agreement with whites the book confirms the ethclass character of the black experience whereby race and race consciousness are still more significant than class in shaping black attitudes Given the growing class bifurcation in black America and the continuing debate about its significance in shaping black attitudes and behavior this book offers a refreshing new analysis of the homogeneity as well as heterogeneity of black mass public opinion Writing the Range Elizabeth Jameson, Susan Hodge Armitage, 1997 In mythic sagas of the American West the wide western range offers boundless opportunity to profile a limited cast of white men In this pathbreaking anthology Jameson and Armitage brings together 29 essays which present the story of women from that era Clearly written and accessible Writing the Range makes a major contribution to ethnic history women s history and interpretations of the American West 27 illustrations 3 maps A Roundtable on Gender, Race, Class, Culture, and Politics: Where Do We Go from Here? Roundtable on Gender, Race, Class, Culture, and Politics: Where do We go from here?., 1998 Urban Nightlife Reuben A. Buford May, 2014-09-02 Sociologists have long been curious about the ways in which city dwellers negotiate urban public space How do they manage myriad interactions in the shared spaces of the city In Urban Nightlife sociologist Reuben May undertakes a nuanced examination of urban nightlife drawing on ethnographic data gathered in a Deep South college town to explore the question of how nighttime revelers negotiate urban public spaces as they go about meeting socializing and entertaining themselves May s work reveals how diverse partiers define these spaces in particular the ongoing social conflict on the streets in bars and nightclubs and in the various public spaces of downtown To explore this conflict May develops the concept of integrated segregation the idea that diverse groups are physically close to one another yet rarely have meaningful interactions rather they are socially bound to those of similar race class and cultural backgrounds May s in depth research leads him to conclude that social tension is stubbornly persistent in part because many participants fail to make the connection between contemporary relations among different groups and the historical and institutional forces that perpetuate those very tensions structural racism remains obscured by a superficial appearance of racial harmony Through May s observations Urban Nightlife clarifies the complexities of race class and culture in contemporary America illustrating the direct influence of local government and nightclub management decision making on interpersonal interaction among groups Watch a video with Reuben A Buford May Watch video now <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=VCs1xExStPw> Race, Class, Culture in America, 1983 Africana Studies John Karefah Marah, 2015-08-27 reflects a wide variety of topics regarding Africana Studies and addresses how Africana studies are affected by a changing global village The readings contribute a critical study of African people from many different points of view each important in their own right Resulting from a collaborative effort at 39th Annual Conference of the New York African Studies Association NYASA selected readings were judged by criticality substance pertinence eclecticism and transformative conceptualizations I ncludes various points of view from college administrators to social scientists to the general student population Shows the evolution of Africana Studies from various backgrounds and terms Questions the nature of Africana Studies in modern times amongst modern issues Publisher

Munasinghe,2018-09-05 Callaloo or Tossed Salad is a historical and ethnographic case study of the politics of cultural struggle between two traditionally subordinate ancestral groups in Trinidad those claiming African and Indian descent Viranjini Munasinghe argues that East Indians in Trinidad seek to become a legitimate part of the nation by redefining what it means to be Trinidadian not by changing what it means to be Indian In her view Indo Trinidadians recent and ongoing struggle for national and cultural identity builds from dissatisfaction with the place they were originally assigned within Trinidadian society The author examines how Indo Trinidadian leaders in Trinidad have come to challenge the implicit claim that their ethnic identity is antithetical to their national identity Their political and cultural strategy seeks to change the national image of Trinidad by introducing Indian elements alongside those of the dominant Afro Caribbean Creole culture Munasinghe analyzes a number of broad theoretical issues the moral political and cultural dimensions of identity the relation between ethnicity and the nation and the possible autonomy of New World nationalisms from European forms She details how principles of exclusion continue to operate in nationalist projects that celebrate ancestral diversity and multiculturalism Drawing on the insights of theorists who use creolization to understand the emergence of Afro American cultures Munasinghe argues that Indo Trinidadians can be considered Creole because they like Afro Trinidadians are creators and not just bearers of culture
